Chapter1. Letter to Shareholders

Ladies and Gentlemen, shareholders:

In 2025, the global manufacturing and electronic components industries entered a period of profound structural adjustment. The trend toward supply chain regionalization driven by geopolitical factors has become increasingly evident. In addition, mandatory ESG-driven green transformation and carbon pricing policies imposed by governments worldwide, coupled with intense cost-control pressures amid global inflation, have introduced significant uncertainties into the overall industrial landscape. Meanwhile, the wave of hardware upgrades driven by AI infrastructure, together with the gradual recovery of the traditional consumer electronics market, has created a year characterized by both opportunities and challenges.

In response to these changes, Jin Hao has continued to strengthen its core capabilities in the R&D and manufacturing of wire harness products. The Company has also introduced highly stable and technologically advanced products targeting key markets such as electric vehicles, high-speed transmission applications, and industrial automation, with the aim of expanding market penetration.

To address the rapid evolution of artificial intelligence technologies across smart manufacturing, autonomous driving, and the Internet of Things (IoT), Jin Hao is not confined to its traditional role as a component supplier. Instead, the Company is actively transforming AI technologies into tangible operational momentum. Our R&D efforts are focused on four core areas: automotive AI, generative AI, semiconductor automation, and industrial quality inspection. By integrating the strengths of Taiwan's AI ecosystem, we are promoting the implementation of AI applications across various vertical industries and providing customers with integrated smart solutions and technical services spanning both hardware and software.

Looking ahead to 2026, amid ongoing global supply chain restructuring, the full-scale expansion of AI applications, and the deepening trend of ESG sustainability, Jin Hao will adopt a strategic approach of “steady operations with precise transformation” to further reinforce its core competitiveness.

In the face of intensifying global price competition and shrinking profit margins, Jin Hao is actively advancing a transformation of its business model—from a traditional “manufacturing-oriented mindset” to a “technology integration and service-oriented” model. By enhancing the high value-added nature of its products, the Company aims to establish new barriers to competition. In response to a rapidly changing market environment, we will continue to increase R&D investment and introduce innovative solutions in high-end wire harnesses and AI-driven technologies to capture future market opportunities.

Despite the challenging external environment, it also provides an opportunity for Jin Hao to comprehensively review and strengthen its operational fundamentals. We will continue to enhance market development, customer relationship management, product R&D, process optimization, and organizational management to ensure the achievement of steady growth objectives. Jin Hao firmly believes that, with its solid technological expertise, agile adaptability, and continuously improving management efficiency, the Company will sustain corporate value, enhance investment returns, and deliver more substantial growth outcomes for shareholders and business partners.

I. 2025 Business results

(I) Business Plan and Budget Execution

1. Operating Revenue: The consolidated operating revenue for 2025 amounted to NT$754,644 thousand, representing a decrease of NT$397,526 thousand compared to NT$1,152,170 thousand in 2024.

2. Net Loss After Tax: The consolidated net loss after tax for 2025 amounted to NT$299,097 thousand, representing a decrease in loss of NT$44,108 thousand compared to a consolidated net loss after tax of NT$254,989 thousand in 2024.

(II) Analysis of financial income, expenses and profitability

| Earnings per share (NT$)                           | (2.55)    | (2.21)    |

(III) Research and development status

Major R&D results for the year and up to the publication date of the annual report:

1. Improvement and enhancement of modular production of Type C, HDMI 2.1 and USB 4.1 transmission line assemblies
2. Production and modular production of special wire assemblies for electric vehicles
3. Development of sensor wire harnesses for autonomous vehicles.
4. Various interface adapters and in-vehicle panel electronic modules.
5. Enhancement of ultra-high-frequency transmission performance of cables and cost optimization.
6. Security Personnel Management System.
7. AI Tech Support Platform.
8. Truck Defender Human Detection System.
9. Ongoing Development of High-Speed Wire Harness Assemblies.
10. Consultative Interactive Robot.
11. Digital Human Application Platform.
12. One-Stop AI Full-Scenario Solution.

II. Summary of 2026 Business Plan

(I) Business Policy

1. Operations: The Company will continue to enhance the performance of its management information systems, and optimize the integration and analytical capabilities of operational data. It will also actively recruit and cultivate interdisciplinary talent to strengthen the team's core competitiveness. On the supply chain front, the Company is committed to optimizing global logistics management to improve overall operational efficiency, while ensuring optimal resource allocation through refined cost and expense control. In terms of AI development, leveraging Haoflyse as its core platform, the Company is establishing a comprehensive upstream–midstream–downstream AI ecosystem in Taiwan. Through business collaborations, strategic alliances, and mergers and acquisitions, it is accelerating AI adoption across industries including automotive, healthcare and caregiving, technology manufacturing, as well as chain retail and hospitality sectors. The Company is also actively expanding into cloud computing power and edge-device AI interface applications, with the goal of executing its transformation and upgrade strategy while injecting new momentum into operations.

2. Products: The Company’s core products cover connection cables for PCs, notebooks, tablets, servers, and peripherals, and extend to key connectivity technologies for gaming consoles, LCD monitors, communication devices, and office equipment. In the optical communication sector, the focus is on active optical components and converters. In the mechanical and automotive sectors, emphasis is placed on connector assemblies, automotive circuit assembly services, and automotive and high-speed wire harnesses, meeting the high standards required for AI computing and new energy vehicles. Additionally, the Company actively invests in the production of environmentally friendly equipment components and the adoption of eco-friendly materials. In the AI domain, through its product lines—including AI Server High-Speed Cables and Hardware, Automotive AI Systems and Robots, Enterprise Second Brain “Agatha”, and Digital Human Application Platform “TUAN”—the Company is fully entering the AI field, targeting cloud computing power, edge-device AI interfaces, and other related areas.
3. Sales: The Company continues to deepen customer relationship management and actively develop emerging market segments, including energy, biotech and healthcare, automotive, industrial, and cloud data centers. In the AI domain, offerings include both product sales and system services, targeting clients across industries and organizations, such as manufacturing, in-vehicle applications, healthcare, and retail. The Group will integrate various resources to establish a comprehensive hardware–software ecosystem, providing customers with one-stop, full-scenario AI solutions from initial design to end-use applications.
4. R&D: The Company focuses on the development of trend-driven and niche products, leveraging external R&D resources to accelerate the innovation process. It continues to promote the adoption of automated manufacturing equipment and strictly implements the Advanced Product Quality Planning (APQP) procedures during early-stage product development to ensure R&D efficiency and stable quality. In the AI domain, the Company is increasing R&D efforts across a wide range of applications—including smart security, healthcare, retail, industrial manufacturing, and generative AI—delivering innovative solutions with strong market competitiveness.
5. Production: The Company optimizes global regional capacity allocation and supply chain management, employing industrial engineering (IE) methods to enhance production efficiency and allocation rationality. A comprehensive production–sales coordination mechanism is in place to ensure flexible and balanced capacity deployment. The Company continues to promote automated production and inspection of high-precision products, and leverages information tools to strengthen real-time remote monitoring, improving yield and operational efficiency. At the same time, supplier and outsourcing management is optimized to ensure supply chain stability and quality.

(II) Expected sales volume and basis

The Company's principal business is the manufacturing and sales of connection cables for computers, peripherals, and communication products. The projections are based on the Company's past business experience with customers, actual operations and order status in the first quarter of 2026, and take into account the increasingly optimistic global economic outlook, the recovery of computer products, and the launch of new electronic products. The estimated sales value of the Company's major products for 2026 is as follows:

|                   | Actual Figures for 2025 | Forecast for 2026 |
|-------------------|-------------------------|-------------------|
| Connection cables | 39,668                  | 48,593            |

Unit: Thousand pcs

(III) Key Production and Sales Policies

1. Marketing strategy

- (1) Enhance Brand Influence: Actively participate in prominent domestic and international trade shows and industry forums to increase product market exposure, and proactively pursue opportunities for collaboration with leading industry players.
- (2) Deepen Niche Markets: Strengthen channel deployment and management in niche markets, boosting sales momentum to improve overall market penetration and influence.
- (3) Diversify Customer Base: Focus on developing cross-industry client segments, leveraging the expansion of business scope to effectively mitigate the impact of seasonal sales fluctuations.
- (4) Implement Profit Management: Reinforce profit-oriented management mechanisms, improve capacity utilization, and optimize inventory turnover to reduce the risk of stock accumulation.

2. Production policy

- (1) Enhance Supply Chain Management Efficiency: Carefully select and cultivate high-quality suppliers, establish real-time supply chain monitoring and quality management systems, and shorten material issuance and in-transit turnaround times.
- (2) Optimize Capacity Forecasting and Scheduling Mechanisms: Improve the accuracy of capacity forecasts, strengthen the flexibility of internal and external capacity allocation, and ensure balanced supply and demand with flexible scheduling.
- (3) Establish a Comprehensive Material Management System: Utilize information management systems to optimize material flow efficiency, implement real-time inventory alerts and contingency mechanisms, and achieve optimal inventory management.
- (4) Promote Process and Equipment Automation: Continuously invest in the technical optimization of production equipment and tooling, enhance process precision and production efficiency, and ensure high stability in product quality.

III. Future Company Development Strategy

Leveraging its solid R&D foundation and outstanding manufacturing management capabilities developed over years of experience in the connector and cable assembly industry, JINHAO will continue to expand its business footprint, drive technological innovation, and deepen its market presence. Its future development strategies will focus on the following directions:

1. Building on more than three decades of accumulated R&D expertise and the advantages of a laboratory certified by Chinese national authorities, along with its status as a qualified supplier recognized by internationally renowned brands, the Company will continue to enhance product performance and service quality, thereby strengthening its competitive barriers in the global market.

2. Capitalizing on its strong R&D capabilities and manufacturing foundation, the Company will promote business transformation from “single components” to “integrated modules and system solutions” through cross-industry strategic collaborations. Its product applications will expand from computer peripherals to high-growth sectors, including cloud data centers, medical and biotechnology, networking and communications equipment, industrial control, energy technology, and autonomous vehicle subsystems.

3. By deepening relationships with key customers, the Company will adopt Joint Design Manufacturing (JDM), collaborative design, and customized production models to actively establish strategic partnerships with leading global enterprises. Leveraging its advantages in agile manufacturing and flexible production scheduling, the Company will support customers in achieving rapid time-to-market and efficient time-to-volume, thereby capturing market opportunities with precision.

4. In the field of AI-related business, the Company will actively expand into high-potential markets such as smart security, smart healthcare, smart retail, smart manufacturing, and generative AI. It will also promote the implementation of AI applications across enterprise, lifestyle, and entertainment scenarios, delivering comprehensive hardware-software integrated solutions.

IV. Impact of External Competitive Environment, Regulatory Environment, and Overall Business Environment

In 2025, the global economy has entered a “low-growth, high-volatility” norm. Supply chain restructuring driven by geopolitical tensions has shifted from a sole focus on cost efficiency to an emphasis on security and resilience. The manufacturing sector is facing increasingly pronounced regionalization challenges, requiring companies to strengthen cross-border operational flexibility and production resilience to respond to unexpected logistics disruptions and trade barriers. In addition, global labor shortages have accelerated the adoption of smart manufacturing worldwide—automation and digitalization are no longer optional, but essential foundations for sustaining profitability.

In the automotive market, the new energy vehicle (NEV) industry has transitioned from a phase of rapid expansion to one of structural optimization in 2025. Beyond advancements in battery technologies, “Software-Defined Vehicles (SDVs)” have emerged as a new core driver, significantly boosting demand for automotive sensor harnesses, high-speed data transmission, and AI computing processors. Meanwhile, increasingly stringent carbon footprint regulations imposed by governments are compelling companies to incorporate decarbonization strategies at the early stages of product design, making low-carbon components a key competitive factor for entering Tier-1 automotive supply chains.

The year 2025 marks a critical milestone for the large-scale deployment of “Physical AI” and Edge AI. AI applications are extending from large-scale cloud models to end devices and production lines. According to forecasts by Gartner and IDC, edge devices with local processing capabilities will become the “neural endpoints” of Industry 4.0. For the cable and connectivity industry, this trend not only drives strong demand for high-end, high-speed cabling within AI servers, but also compels companies to deeply integrate AI technologies into automated quality inspection and warehouse management. Through AI enablement, enterprises can enhance productivity and maintain economic competitiveness in the global market.

From a regulatory perspective, the European Union's Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism (CBAM) has been formally implemented, while global scrutiny of corporate sustainability reporting continues to intensify. In 2025, environmental costs have effectively become tangible operating costs. Suppliers with strong carbon management capabilities, green manufacturing processes, and circular economy strategies will gain priority access to procurement opportunities from leading international enterprises. JINHAO regards ESG as a catalyst for transformation. By optimizing process energy efficiency and developing environmentally friendly material applications, the Company aims not only to meet increasingly stringent global environmental regulations, but also to convert compliance into a differentiated competitive advantage.

However, this does not apply to those who serve as members of the Company's Remuneration Committee.

5. Board Diversity and Independence:

(1) Board Diversity:

Based on the Company's diversity policy, the strengthening of corporate governance, and the promotion of sound development in the composition and structure of the Board of Directors, the nomination of director candidates is conducted in accordance with the candidate nomination system stipulated in the Company's Articles of Incorporation. Each candidate's academic and professional qualifications, professional background, integrity, and relevant professional qualifications are evaluated. After approval by the Board of Directors, the candidates are submitted to the shareholders' meeting for election. In addition to the principle that the number of directors concurrently serving as company managers should not exceed one-third of the board seats, the composition of the Board also formulates appropriate diversity policies based on its operational needs, business model, and development requirements, including but not limited to the following:

- (A) Basic conditions and values: gender, age, nationality, and culture.
- (B) Professional knowledge and skills: operational judgment, business management capabilities, leadership and decision-making abilities, crisis management skills, product knowledge, and an international market perspective.
- (C) Professional background: technology industry, financial investment, financial accounting, and technical research.

The specific goals and achievement of the Company's diversification policies are as follows:

| Management objectives                                                                                                                 | Achievement |

| At least one female director on the Board of Directors (reaching 12.5%). | Achieved |

- (2) If the number of directors of one gender on the Board of Directors of a TWSE/TPEX listed company is less than one-third of the Board, the reasons and measures planned to be taken to improve the gender diversity of directors shall be stated:

(A) Current status description

The Company's Articles of Incorporation stipulate that the Board of Directors shall consist of 7 to 9 directors. At the annual shareholders' meeting held on June 29, 2023, 7 directors (including 3 independent directors) were elected for the current term. At the 2025 annual shareholders' meeting, two directors were elected, and in July 2025, one independent director resigned. As of the publication date of the annual report, the Board consists of 8 directors (including 3 independent directors), including one female director.

(B) Planning and implementing measures

The Company values gender equality in the composition of its Board of Directors and aims to increase the number of female directors. Going forward, the Company will actively seek female talents with professional expertise, leadership experience, and an international perspective to join the Board, in order to enhance corporate governance effectiveness and implement the Board diversity policy.

- (3) Board independence: The company's board of directors consists of 8 directors with diverse professional backgrounds, including 3 independent directors and 5 directors; there are no spousal relationships or family relationships within the second degree of kinship among board members, in compliance with Paragraph 3 of Article 26-3 of the Securities and Exchange Act.

(4)Implementation of the board diversity policy is as shown in the following table:

| 1. Please describe the remuneration policies, systems, standards, and structures for independent directors, and their linkage to the amount of remuneration based on factors such as responsibilities, risks, and time invested: The Company's remuneration payment policy for directors is stipulated in the Articles of Incorporation. Remuneration to the president and vice president is handled according to the Company's Labor and Wage Cycle Rules According to Articles of Incorporation, the Company shall set aside 1% to 5% of the annual profit, if any, as remuneration to directors and supervisors. However, earning shall first be used to make up for accumulated losses. The performance evaluation and remuneration to directors and company officers shall be based on the usual standards of the industry, while taking into account the reasonableness of the linkage to the individuals performance, performance evaluation results and the Company's operating performance and future risks. 2. Other than the disclosure in the above table, remunerations to the directors for providing services (such as serving as a consultant to the non-employees of the parent company/all companies listed in the financial statements/reinvested enterprises, etc.) in the most recent year: None. |                                                                                                |                           |                                                |                               |                                                |                             |                                                |                                 |                                                |                                                                |                                                |                                                     |                                                |                               |                                                |                                                |                |                 |                |                                                                           |                 |                                                                                |

| President and vice presidents | 2.13%                                             | 2.18%                     | 2.32%       | 2.36%                     |

2.Remuneration policy, standard, and package:

- (1)For the Company's directors' remuneration, according to Article 19 of the Company's Articles of Incorporation, if the Company was profitable during the year, no more than 1% of the profit may be allocated as remuneration for directors.
- (2)Directors receive a fixed transportation allowance based on their attendance in Board of Directors or Functional Committee meetings.
- (3)The remunerations to the president and vice presidents are determined based on industry standards and position's scope of authority and responsibility in the Company. Reasonable bonuses and employee bonuses are given based on the Company's profits, individual work performance, and contribution to the Company's business goals, in order to encourage and retain talent.

3.Procedure for determining remuneration:

Remuneration of directors, president, and vice presidents (including employee bonuses, salary raises, and non-fixed bonuses) must be reviewed by the Remuneration Committee and submitted to the Board of Directors for approval.

4.The connection to operating performance and future risk:

- (1)The review of the payment standards and systems of the Company's remuneration policy is primarily based on the overall operating status of the Company. It considers performance achievement rates and contributions to determine payment standards, aiming to enhance the overall organizational effectiveness of the Board of Directors and the management department. We also refer to industry salary standards to ensure that the Company's management remuneration is competitive in the industry so as to retain outstanding management talents.
- (2)The President and Vice President remunerations provided by the Company includes long-term bonuses, which are in the form of restricted share awards. It is not paid in full in the current year of earnings, and its actual value is related to profitability, which shares future business risks with the Company.
- (3)The remuneration of directors already takes into consideration the Company's business goals, financial position, and the duties of directors.
- (4)The remuneration of the president and vice presidents already takes into consideration their professional abilities, the Company's business performance, financial position, and their duties.

- (5) Important decisions made by the Company's managers give consideration to various risk factors. The performance of important decisions reflects on the Company's profitability, and is further connected to the remuneration to managers. In other words, the remuneration of directors, president, and vice presidents is connected to their performance in managing future risks.

III. TWSE/TPEX listed companies shall disclose the cycle and period, scope, method, and content of self evaluations of the Board of Directors:

- (I) The performance evaluation indicators for individual board members, the board of directors, and functional committees of the company take into account overall operations and needs. The "Board Performance Evaluation Measures" are formulated and submitted to the Compensation Committee for review, and implemented after being reported to and approved by the Board of Directors.
- (II) According to the "Board Performance Evaluation Measures," an internal performance evaluation of individual directors, the Board of Directors, and functional committees is conducted once every year. Every three years, an external independent professional institution or a team of external experts and scholars conducts an evaluation and prepares an external assessment analysis report. The report is submitted to the Compensation Committee for discussion before the end of the first quarter of the following year, and is then reported to the functional committees and the Board of Directors as a reference for continuously strengthening the Board's functions, and is disclosed on the company's official website for investors' reference.

(III) Outcome of Assessment :

1.self-evaluation : The overall board self-evaluation average score is 4.71, and the individual directors’ performance self-evaluation average score is 4.78; all directors gave positive evaluations, indicating that the overall board operation is sound. The Remuneration Committee’s performance self-evaluation average score is 4.84, the Audit Committee’s performance self-evaluation average score is 4.94, and the Sustainability Development Committee’s performance self-evaluation average score is 4.91; this shows that the functional committees operate well and are able to fully perform their functions. (All scores are out of a maximum of 5 points.)

2. After evaluation, it is considered that the company’s board of directors has, in all respects, formulated relevant policies and procedures for board operations in accordance with applicable laws and domestic corporate governance indicators. The board of directors is composed of directors with relevant professional capabilities and assigns work based on different expertise and experience. The functions of the board and each functional committee operate effectively, and the evaluation result is excellent.

IV. Assessment of goals and implementation for enhancing the functions of the Board of Directors in the current and recent fiscal years (such as establishing an Audit Committee, improving information transparency, etc.):

- (I) The company has established audit, remuneration, and sustainability development committees to perform supervisory duties and achieve the goal of strengthening the functions of the board of directors.

| III. Composition and Responsibilities of the Board of Directors(I) Has the board formulated a diversity policy, specific management objectives, and their implementation? | V         |    | (I) To enhance corporate governance and promote a sound composition and structure of the Board of Directors, the Company has established the 'Corporate Governance Best Practice Principles,' which outline appropriate diversity policies for the Board's composition. In addition to the requirement that directors concurrently serving as managerial officers of the Company shall not exceed one-third of the total number of board seats, the Company also considers its operational model and development needs in formulating diversity policies, including but not limited to the following aspects: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Basic Attributes and Values: Gender, age, nationality, and culture.</li> <li>2. Professional Knowledge and Skills: Business judgment, management capabilities, leadership and decision-making skills, crisis management, product knowledge, and international market insight.</li> <li>3. Professional Background: Experience in the technology industry, financial investment, accounting and finance, and technical research.</li> </ol> The company's board of directors consists of a total of 8 seats (including 3 independent directors). Independent directors account for 37.5%, and external directors account for 75%. All board members have diverse and complementary professional backgrounds. Among them, 1 seat is held by a female director. The specific management objectives and implementation status of the board diversity policy are detailed on page 14 of this annual report. | None                                                                                                                                         |

| (III) Has the company established a method for assessing board performance and its evaluation methods, conducting performance evaluations annually and regularly, reporting the results to the board, and using them for individual director compensation and nomination for reappointment? | V         |    | (III) For implementing corporate governance and enhancing the functions of the company's board of directors, performance objectives have been established to strengthen the efficiency of board operations, and the "Board Performance Evaluation Measures" have been formulated. The board performance evaluation is conducted once a year; every three years, an external professional independent institution or external expert scholar team conducts an evaluation. The results of internal and external board performance evaluations shall be completed before the end of the first quarter of the following year. The internal board performance evaluation results for 2025 have been submitted to the functional committees and the board of directors as of December 31, 2025. In addition, in 2025, Cheng Yi Management Consulting Co., Ltd. was commissioned to conduct an external evaluation, and on December 31, 2025 issued the "External Evaluation Report on the Operation of the Board of Directors/Functional Committees and Performance of Board Members." Relevant recommendations and the company's planned measures have been submitted to the functional committees and the board of directors as of December 31, 2025. The description of the execution results of the relevant internal and external board performance evaluations has been published on the company's official website. | None                                                                                                                                         |

2. Terms of reference of the Remuneration Committee

The Committee shall exercise the care of a good administrator and faithfully perform the following duties, and submit its recommendations to the Board of Directors for discussion. However, the proposal for the remuneration of supervisors to the board of directors for discussion is limited to those stipulated in the articles of association of the company or authorized by the board of directors through resolutions of the shareholders' meeting:

- (1) Set and regularly review the performance evaluation standards, annual and long-term performance goals for the company's directors, supervisors, and managers, along with the policies, systems, standards, and structures for salary compensation.
- (2) Regularly assess the achievement of performance goals by the company's directors, supervisors, and managers, and based on the results of the performance evaluations according to the established standards, determine the content and amount of their individual salary compensation.

| I. Has the Company established a governance structure for the promotion of sustainable development, with dedicated (or part-time) units to promote sustainable development, with senior management authorized by the Board of Directors to handle it, and whether it is supervised by the Board of Directors? | V                     |    | In 2024, the Company established a Sustainability Committee and formulated the “Sustainability Committee Charter.” The first members of the Committee were appointed, including Chairman Mr. Hao-Chi Shih, Independent Director Mr. En-Kuo Wang, and Deputy General Manager of the General Administration Division Mr. Wen-Wei Chen. The Committee serves as the decision-making and supervisory body for the Company’s sustainability-related initiatives. It assists the Board of Directors in continuously advancing corporate social responsibility and enhancing corporate governance, with the goal of achieving sustainable operations. The Committee holds meetings regularly and reports on the progress and performance of sustainability initiatives to the Board on a quarterly basis. The Sustainable Development Committee serves as a cross-departmental communication platform that facilitates both vertical integration and horizontal coordination. Through meetings and task forces established based on specific issues, the committee identifies sustainability topics relevant to the company’s operations and of concern to stakeholders. It formulates corresponding strategies and work guidelines, plans and executes annual initiatives, and monitors implementation results to ensure that sustainability strategies are effectively integrated into the company’s daily operations. The Sustainable Development Committee regularly reports to the Board of Directors on the execution of sustainability initiatives and future work plans. In 2025, the committee reported to the Board a total of two times on sustainability-related matters, including: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. In addition to implementing office waste sorting and recycling systems, it also requires that equipment remain turned off during non-working hours. Through the combined implementation of standardized management and employee self-discipline, we effectively reduce unnecessary energy consumption and achieve the dual goals of energy conservation and carbon reduction, as well as cost savings.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | None                                                                                                                                      |
| (III) Has the Company assessed the potential risks and opportunities posed by climate change to the Company at present and in the future, and taken relevant countermeasures?                                                                                         | V                     |    | (III) In terms of greenhouse gas reduction, the company works with customers to promote localized production and joins hands with customers to build strong and stable production bases. Through a cross strategy of vertical integration and horizontal development, the transportation distance of raw materials and products is significantly shortened, and carbon emissions generated during transportation are reduced, effectively reducing the carbon footprint. At the same time, the company has introduced LED energy-saving lighting facilities at its Kunshan production base, actively starting from basic hardware construction, and has substantially replaced the use of high-energy-consuming mercury lamps. This not only eliminates the use of high-energy-consuming products, but also removes the use and risks of highly polluting mercury. | None                                                                                                                                      |
| (IV) Has the Company kept statistics on the amount of greenhouse gas emission, water consumption and total weight of waste in the past two years, and formulated policies for greenhouse gas reduction, reduction of water consumption or management of other wastes? | V                     |    | (IV) In the sustainability reports on our company's official website, statistics and disclosures are provided for greenhouse gas emissions, annual water usage, and waste generation for the years 112 and 113. In terms of greenhouse gas reduction, our company actively implements a "turn off the lights when leaving" policy, requiring that equipment remain powered off during non-working hours to ensure reduced unnecessary energy consumption. In addition, our company continuously enforces daily water usage management to enhance water use efficiency, and promotes a mostly paperless office. For non-essential documents, recycled paper is used for printing to reduce waste generation.                                                                                                                                                        | None                                                                                                                                      |

We have adopted the PDCA (Plan-Do-Check-Act) cyclical management model, continuously enhancing system implementation and process improvement, deepening risk prevention mechanisms, and promoting the rooting of a safety culture. As of the end of 2025, the occupational health and safety management coverage of our company's workplaces has reached 100%, with no workers excluded from the scope of management, ensuring that the management system is fully integrated into daily operations. At the same time, we have extended occupational health and safety management requirements to contractors. Through clear regulations, on-site audits, and training, we ensure their compliance with relevant laws and company standards, thereby implementing the consistency and effectiveness of supply chain safety management. For any occupational accidents or near-miss incidents, Jinhao Optoelectronics activates a cross-departmental investigation mechanism, applying root cause analysis to conduct systematic reviews and propose specific preventive and improvement measures to prevent similar incidents from occurring again, protecting the health and safety of all internal and external workers. Jin-Haw Optoelectronics has designated occupational health and safety management personnel. If employees identify potential workplace hazards or have suggestions related to occupational safety and health, they may report them verbally or via email. These reports are handled by the Human Resources Department or occupational health and safety management personnel, who will take necessary improvement measures based on the situation to implement workplace risk control and prevention. In addition, we continuously enhance employees' awareness and compliance with the occupational health and safety management system through policy promotion, internal communication, and training activities, strengthening their |                                                                                                                                           |

The company has established official Chinese and English websites (https://www.jh.com.tw) to provide the public with comprehensive information and contact details for all its plants, ensuring open and transparent communication with the public at all times. 7. Occupational Health and Safety Management System ISO : (1) Our company, since 2018, has completed the transition of its occupational health and safety management system and has passed certification to obtain the ISO 45001 certificate, establishing a management framework that complies with international standards. The company has formulated clear and strict occupational health and safety management policies, setting “zero harm, zero occupational disease, zero accidents” as its goal, and integrating this into the company’s core values to create a best-in-class workplace environment for all employees. (2) Since fiscal year 2018 to the present, the company has not experienced any major occupational injuries, occupational diseases, or significant accident events, and is expected to continue steadily advancing toward its established goals while pursuing excellence. (3) Industrial Safety: The Xindian headquarters has established a Safety and Disaster Prevention Center to instantly transmit safety information from each plant. In the event of typhoons, earthquakes, or major epidemics, it immediately activates the emergency response organization, strengthening the group’s overall disaster prevention and response capabilities. (4) Fire Safety System Management: The company places a high priority on fire safety management across all plant sites, continuously auditing and strengthening both software and hardware facilities as well as related management mechanisms to ensure that all safety measures are properly implemented. We aim for zero incidents and proactively review potential risks. Whenever any deficiencies are identified, improvement procedures are immediately initiated, with the goal of minimizing fire risks as much as possible. The scope of management includes updating and posting evacuation and escape maps, establishing real-time reporting mechanisms to fire authorities, and planning and implementing annual fire drills. Through systematic and routine management practices, we comprehensively enhance the overall disaster resilience and emergency response capabilities of the facilities. (5) Occupational safety education and training: In order to deepen all employees’ safety awareness and strengthen emergency response capabilities, the company conducts two annual fire brigade drills and building lift equipment usage training. Employees are also encouraged to participate in diverse, practice-oriented fire safety courses, including fire safety knowledge promotion, protection plan briefings, and fire prevention measures. The company has cultivated 10 core members responsible for promoting and assisting various safety management tasks to ensure comprehensive implementation of training and education. In addition, through the factory safety audit mechanism, implementation status is continuously reviewed. All deficiencies identified during inspections have been corrected, demonstrating the company’s high level of execution capability and proactive action in occupational safety management. |                       |    |         |                                                                                                                                           |

| III. Describe the financial impacts of extreme weather events and transition actions. | III. The company carefully evaluates the potential risks and impacts brought about by climate change and places close attention on the effects that extreme weather events may have on its operations. As global climate risks increase, the rising frequency and intensity of extreme weather disasters such as high temperatures, droughts, typhoons, and floods may have direct or indirect impacts on the company's operating sites and supply chain stability. Related risks include equipment failures or operational abnormalities caused by unusual climate conditions, production line disruptions, capacity constraints, and employees being unable to report to work due to transportation or safety concerns, thereby affecting overall operational efficiency. To reduce the impact of extreme weather on operations, the company has, based on the geographical environment and risk characteristics of each operating site, arranged insurance planning for fixed assets, machinery and equipment, and inventory, and continues to review the appropriateness of insurance coverage and insured amounts to strengthen risk transfer mechanisms. At the same time, the company also continues to optimize equipment maintenance management and |                                                                           |        |                                    |

However, despite the establishment of relevant risk management and protection mechanisms, under certain major or unforeseeable circumstances, it may still be impossible to fully compensate for actual losses due to factors such as the scope of insurance coverage, claim conditions, or the extent of losses, thereby causing a certain degree of impact on the company's finances or operations. Therefore, the Company will continue to monitor climate change trends and related risk developments, and dynamically adjust its response strategies to strengthen the foundation for the company's long-term sustainable development. IV. ## (III) Company's dividend policy and implementation

1. Dividend policy stipulated in the Articles of Incorporation:

If the company's annual final accounts show a surplus, taxes shall first be paid, past losses from previous years shall be made up, and then 10% shall be set aside as the statutory surplus reserve. However, once the accumulated statutory surplus reserve has reached the amount of paid-in capital, further appropriations may be waived. In addition, depending on the company's operational needs or legal requirements, a special surplus reserve may be appropriated or reversed. If there is still a remaining balance, together with accumulated undistributed earnings, the board of directors shall allocate 10%–100% of it, prepare a profit distribution proposal, and submit it to the shareholders' meeting for resolution and distribution.

The cash dividends shall not be less than 30% of the total dividends. however, if the cash dividends are less than NT$0.1 per share, dividends may be distributed in the form of shares. The rates for earnings distribution are adjusted by resolution of the shareholders meeting depending on the actual profit of the year, capital budget and the Company's state of capital.

When the said earnings distribution is made in the form of cash dividends, the Board of Directors is authorized to reach resolution and to report to the shareholders' meeting.

2. Dividend distribution proposed at the shareholders' meeting:

The Company's 2025 loss appropriation proposal was approved by the Board of Directors on March 13, 2026, and it is proposed that no dividends be distributed.

3. Expected material change in dividend policy: No such situation.

(IV) The impact of the stock dividend as proposed in the current shareholders' meeting on the Company's operating performance and earnings per share: No such situation.

(V) Remuneration to employees, directors, and supervisors:

1. The percentage or range of employees'/directors'/supervisors' remuneration stated in the Articles of Incorporation:

If the Company has profits in any fiscal year, it shall allocate 3%–15% as employee remuneration (of the employee remuneration amount in this item, not less than 25% shall be allocated as remuneration for lower-level employees), and 1%–5% as director remuneration; however, if the Company has accumulated losses, it shall first reserve an amount to offset such losses.

The aforementioned employee remuneration may be paid in the form of stock or cash, and its recipients may include employees of controlled or affiliated companies who meet certain conditions, with the conditions and allocation methods delegated to the board of directors for resolution. Directors' remuneration may only be paid in cash.

The preceding two items shall be carried out by a special resolution of the board of directors, and reported to the shareholders' meeting.

2. Estimation basis for the amount of compensation for employees, directors, and supervisors for the current period, basis for calculating the number of shares for employee compensation distributed in stock, and the accounting treatment if the actual distributed amount differs from the estimated amount: No such situation.
3. Board of directors' approval of compensation distribution:
  - (1) Amount of employee compensation and compensation for directors and supervisors distributed in cash or stock: The company incurred a loss in 2025, therefore it plans not to distribute employee and director remuneration.
  - (2) Amount of employee compensation distributed in stock and the ratio to the net profit after tax of the current period's individual or standalone financial statements and the total employee compensation: Not applicable.
4. Actual distribution of compensation to employees, directors, and supervisors in the previous year (including the number of shares distributed, the amount, and the share price), and differences from the recognized compensation should also state the difference, reasons, and handling: Not applicable. The company incurred a loss in 2024, therefore it is proposed that no employee or director compensation be distributed.

(VI) Company's repurchase of its own shares: None.

VII. Mergers, acquisitions or issuance of new shares for acquisition of shares of other companies : None.

VIII. Financing plans and implementation

As of the quarter preceding the date of printing of the annual report, for the plans involving previous issuances or private placements of securities that have not yet been completed, or that were completed within the past three years but whose intended benefits have not yet materialized, the content and implementation status of the plans:

1. Project items and content:

- (1) The private placement of common shares for 2025 was approved at the shareholders' regular meeting on June 30, 2025. Within one year from the date of the shareholders' resolution, up to 20,000 thousand shares of common stock will be issued in two tranches through a private placement.
- (2) On October 29, 2025, the first private placement of 12,427,600 common shares has been completed, with a price of NT$12.07 per share, raising NT$150,001 thousand in funds; the number of shares not yet issued is 7,572,400 shares.
- (3) Project items and planned implementation progress:

Unit: NT$ thousand

| Plan items   | Scheduled completion date | Total required funding amount | Planned fund utilization progress |
|--------------|---------------------------|-------------------------------|-----------------------------------|
|              |                           |                               | 2025                              |
|              |                           |                               | Q4                                |
| reinvestment | The 4th quarter of 2025   | 150,001                       | 150,001                           |
| Total        |                           | 150,001                       | 150,001                           |

(4) Expected benefits that may be generated :

The company's private placement of common shares this time raised NT$150,001 thousand, mainly for reinvestment purposes, in order to achieve sustainable corporate development and expand its market presence. After securing stable long-term funding, the company will be able to reduce operating costs, improve its financial structure, enhance management efficiency, and strengthen its competitive advantage, which will have a positive impact on shareholders' equity.

2. Execution status

Unit: NT$ thousand

| Plan items   | Execution status   |             |         | Reasons for being ahead of or behind schedule and improvement plan                                       |
|--------------|--------------------|-------------|---------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              | Amount disbursed   | Reservation | 150,001 |                                                                                                          |
| reinvestment |                    | actual      | 150,001 | It has been completed in accordance with the funding utilization progress in the fourth quarter of 2025. |
|              |                    | Reservation | 100%    |                                                                                                          |
|              | Execution progress | actual      | 100%    |                                                                                                          |
|              |                    | Reservation | 100%    |                                                                                                          |

The company's private placement capital increase of NT$150,001 thousand for this issuance was received on October 29, 2025, and was used in accordance with the plan in November and December of 2025 for reinvestment projects. The main uses included a total of NT$90,494 thousand invested in subsidiaries such as Cintian Technology, Jinzuan, and JBT to support working capital needs for the subsidiaries' business development; NT$22,874 thousand used to increase the equity transaction amount for acquiring additional shares in subsidiary Jinzuan; and NT$42,996 thousand invested in Junhan Intelligent (a security surveillance product manufacturer) to meet future operational and business requirements. In summary, the company's private placement capital increase was fully executed in the fourth quarter of 2025.

3. Evaluation of execution effectiveness

Due to intense competition in the cable and connectivity market, and the overall economic situation being affected by U.S. President Trump's tariff policies and inflation, resulting in sales performance falling short of expectations, the company's profitability has declined. Considering the company's medium- to long-term development strategy, it plans to allocate funds toward reinvestment in other ventures in order to partially shift toward the AI sector. In the long term, this is expected to have a positive impact on shareholders' equity. However, since the funds were not received until October 29, 2025, and implementation only began in November and December, the benefits of the reinvestment had not yet materialized as of the publication date of this annual report.

2. Weight of business:

| Product    | Weighting (%) |
|------------|---------------|
| Connectors | 93            |
| Others     | 7             |

3. The Company's current products:

- (1) Wire and cable processing and manufacturing of wire and circuit boards.
- (2) Precision electronic sockets, connectors and related components.
- (3) Molds, injection molding, stamping parts and other electronic parts for electronic components.
- (4) Various cable assemblies for signal transmission and various cables.
- (5) Applications for automotive wire and cable assemblies, automotive sensor wire assemblies, and other wire and cable assemblies.
- (6) Flexible flat cable and ultra-thin coaxial cable for NB/TV/monitor.
- (7) Face recognition machine
- (8) One-stop AI solution for all fields

4. New products planned for development:

Although the connector industry is a mature market, its demand has remained stable and continues to grow. Looking ahead, the company will focus on high-frequency, high-speed, and high-precision connectivity technologies, and will deepen its strategic deployment in the server and automotive electronics sectors. In addition to the core development of connectors and components, we are also committed to providing comprehensive process solutions to address the diverse applications of technological innovation and smart living, thereby expanding broader business development opportunities.

In the 3C market segment, with the evolution of technology, Type-C has established itself as the mainstream connection standard. The trend toward thinner and lighter laptops has driven an urgent demand for Type-C interfaces, which offer the advantages of high-speed data transmission, audio and video output, and efficient power delivery, making them a key standard feature in modern devices. Our company's R&D focus will move toward greater precision, high performance, and multifunctional integration, while introducing production technologies with economies of scale to strengthen cost competitiveness and market advantages.

For server and data center applications, in response to the surging demand for cloud computing and AI high-performance computing, high-speed transmission technology has become a key area of development. Our company is actively developing server-specific technologies including PCIe, CXL, and optoelectronic hybrid transmission, providing transmission solutions with high bandwidth and low latency to support the ever-growing demand for data processing.

In the fields of automotive electronics and smart industry, supply chain stability and product reliability are core competitive factors. Automotive connectors feature high technical barriers and long certification cycles, and have become an important driving force for industry growth in recent years. Our company will continue to work closely with leading international automakers and supply chain partners to develop in-vehicle connection solutions that meet high durability and high safety standards, while gradually integrating into the smart transportation ecosystem to increase market share.

Upholding the core vision of “ConnectingAI,” the company is committed to helping customers connect with and deeply develop in the AI industry. As a hardware-software integration enterprise, we provide comprehensive solutions covering AI computing, edge devices, and automation applications through an integrated service model spanning design, R&D, production, and sales. In the future, Jin Hao will continue to deepen technological research and development, link the AI industry chain, and create greater value and possibilities for the era of intelligentization.

(II) Industry Overview

1. Current Status and Development of the Industry

From the fourth quarter of 2025 to early 2026, the core issues in the industry revolve around AI infrastructure and upgrades to high-end consumer electronics specifications. Traditional pure copper wiring is reaching its transmission limits, and the market is rapidly shifting toward a transition of “fiber advancing, copper retreating” and “multi-functional composite cables.” Benefiting from a recovery in demand for electronic end products and communications, Taiwan’s electronic wire and communication cable output value showed a growth trend in the first ten months of 2025, with a year-on-year increase of 3.5%. Meanwhile, the sharply rising demand for high-speed transmission in AI servers has become the strongest driving force for the fiber optic and cable market, even offsetting the impact of weak traditional telecom demand.

In the consumer electronics sector, upgrades in interface standards are a key highlight, mainly focusing on improvements in transmission speed and charging power. As of December 2025, Thunderbolt 5 has gradually become a standard feature in mid-to-high-end devices, officially leading the market into an era of ultra-high-speed transmission. Although initial adoption will show a “slow but steady” progression, it is expected to become more widely adopted by 2027. Meanwhile, hybrid cables are on the rise, with growing market demand for cables capable of transmitting both “power” and “data” simultaneously. The global hybrid cable market is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate of 5.32% starting from 2026, with the Asia-Pacific region as the primary market.

With the increasing demand for data centers and high-performance computing, the connector market is rapidly shifting toward high-speed transmission specifications above 6Gbps. Although traditional low-speed connectors still hold a large market share, the growth momentum has already shifted to high-speed products.

Analysis of the Scale and Trends of the Electronic Components Industry

ITRI stated that, driven by the construction of AI infrastructure, the rise of AI servers is redefining the value chain of the electronics industry. Taiwan's electronics industry, from upstream materials to key components, is demonstrating strong momentum. This not only brings rapid market demand growth, but also drives product upgrades and technological transformation, moving comprehensively toward "high-end development" and "high value-added development."

Industrial Technology Research Institute (ITRI) Industrial Economics and Knowledge Center analyst Zhang Hongyi pointed out that as the concept of AI PCs continues to gain traction, along with a replacement wave driven by the end of Windows 10 updates, the IT product market is gradually recovering, injecting a new wave of growth momentum into Taiwan's display panel industry. The output value in 2025 is projected to reach NT$783.1 billion, with an annual growth of approximately 0.1%.

Looking ahead to 2026, LCD products will still be the mainstream in the market, and with the support of Mini LED backlight technology, they are expected to rapidly expand in the fields of televisions and automotive applications. Micro LED is anticipated to gradually expand into high-end application areas such as televisions, smart watches, automotive displays, and CPO advanced packaging. Driven by multiple technological pathways, the output value of Taiwan's panel industry in 2026 is expected to recover to NT$790.9 billion, with an annual growth of approximately 1.0%.

Analyst Hsiao Rui-chung from the Industrial Technology Research Institute's Industry, Science and Technology International Strategy Center further pointed out that, with the rapid expansion of the AI server market, Taiwan's passive components industry is entering a period of steady growth opportunities. In addition, the AI application boom is driving a continuous increase in shipments of high-end products, which has also led to simultaneous growth in both market demand and product value. The output value in 2025 is projected to reach NT$255.9 billion, an annual increase of approximately 6.4%.

Looking ahead to 2026, as AI infrastructure continues to advance and high-performance computing applications become increasingly widespread, advanced AI applications will drive upgrades in industry standards and technological innovation, becoming the main source of momentum for the next wave of growth. The output value in 2026 is expected to increase to NT$276.7 billion, with an annual growth rate of 8.1%, driving Taiwan's passive components industry to steadily move toward higher-end and higher-value development.

Notably, Chen Zhi-Yu, an analyst at the Industrial Technology Research Institute's Industrial Economics and Knowledge Center, pointed out that as demand for AI server applications continues to rise, the global liquid cooling market is steadily expanding. At present, major Taiwanese thermal management companies have already gained a significant share of the server cold plate market, and orders continue to increase.

Compared with traditional air-cooling solutions, liquid cooling systems have a clear advantage in the gross margin structure of components and have therefore become an important driving force in boosting the overall industry output value. The output value in 2025 is projected to reach NT$266.6 billion, with an annual growth rate as high as 63.8%, making it the most outstanding-performing sub-sector of electronic components in recent years.

Looking ahead to 2026, in addition to existing water cooling plate and immersion cooling technologies, emerging solutions such as microchannel cold plates, microfluidic cooling, and the potentially highly efficient superfluid cooling technology are all entering active research and validation stages. This indicates that liquid cooling heat dissipation is moving into a new phase characterized by diversification and high performance advancement. It is projected that output value in 2026 will further rise to NT$353.8 billion, with an annual growth rate of approximately 32.7%, demonstrating strong growth potential driven by the development of AI infrastructure.

Analyst Zhang Yuansong of the Industry, Science and Technology International Strategy Center at the Industrial Technology Research Institute further stated that AI servers have now become the core growth engine of Taiwan's and even the global PCB industry. They are not only driving strong order demand, but also pushing simultaneous upgrades in product technology and materials, accelerating the industry toward higher value-added development. A market structure of "rising both volume and price" is gradually taking shape, with output value in 2025 projected to reach NT$915.7 billion, an annual increase of about 12.1%.

However, the pressure from tightening supply of key advanced materials such as Low Dk/Low CTE glass fiber cloth and HVLP copper foil is increasingly intensifying. Although this may affect shipment pace in the short term, it could also drive up material prices, further reflecting in product value and becoming a new growth momentum supporting industry development. Driven by multiple applications such as AI, high-performance computing, and advanced packaging, the output value in 2026 is expected to surpass the 1 trillion mark, with an annual growth of approximately 9.7%, demonstrating Taiwan's continuously deepening key position in the global electronics supply chain.

Global technology devices of all kinds experienced a wave of recovery and growth in 2025, but looking ahead to 2026, due to severe shortages of memory and storage components and soaring costs, the consumer electronics market will face significant structural challenges.

In the case of personal computers (PCs) and AI PCs, the steady recovery in 2025 is driven by the Windows 11 upgrade cycle and enterprise hardware replacement demand, with the global PC market showing a significant rebound in 2025. Research firm Omdia points out that global PC shipments in 2025 are expected to reach approximately 279 million units, a year-on-year increase of 9.2% (of which laptops account for about 220 million units and desktops about 59 million units). Gartner's data also shows shipments exceeding 270 million units, a year-on-year increase of 9.1%. Due to the rise of embedded artificial intelligence (AI PCs), AI PCs are becoming a new standard for enterprise procurement. Gartner estimates that AI PC sales in 2025 will reach 77.8 million units, accounting for 31% of the global market. However, in 2026, due to a sharp rise in memory and storage costs for mainstream PCs (increases of 40% to 70%), IDC significantly revised its forecast downward in early 2026, estimating that global PC shipments will decline by 11.3% in 2026. Although shipment volumes are decreasing, the increase in average selling price (ASP) is expected to drive slight revenue growth of 1.6% in the global PC market, according to IDC. To ensure profit margins and cope with surging costs, PC manufacturers will shift their focus toward high-end products, reduce mid- and low-end configurations, and may even scale back RAM and SSD capacities in entry-level models. At the same time, AI PC penetration is expected to exceed 50% in 2026.

In the segment of smartphones and generative AI smartphones, global smartphone shipments in 2025 reached approximately 1.25 to 1.26 billion units, with year-on-year growth of about 1.5% to 1.9%. Among them, Apple benefited from strong sales of the iPhone 17 series, achieving a record-high shipment volume and firmly maintaining its position as the global leader. Meanwhile, smartphones equipped with generative AI capabilities are rapidly becoming widespread; as of the third quarter of 2025, cumulative global shipments have already exceeded 500 million units. In 2026, the smartphone market is also expected to be affected by the global memory shortage crisis, with the impact likely to be more severe than that on the PC market. IDC forecasts that global smartphone shipments in 2026 will drop sharply by 12.9%, falling to around 1.1 billion units, marking the lowest annual shipment level in more than a decade. Counterpoint Research has also issued a pessimistic forecast of a 12% decline. Because low-end smartphones have extremely thin profit margins, it is difficult for them to absorb the sharply rising component costs. Many manufacturers may choose to exit the low-price segment (such as devices under $150), which will lead to a decline of more than 20% in emerging markets that rely on low-end phones (such as Africa and the Middle East). Despite the unfavorable overall environment, generative AI smartphones will continue to gain adoption, with expectations of expanding into the mid-range market of $350–$400, and achieving the milestone of surpassing 1 billion cumulative shipments by the third quarter of 2026.

As for tablets, the global market continued to recover in 2025, with annual shipments reaching 162 million units, an increase of 9.8% year over year, marking the highest annual shipment volume since the pandemic in 2020. Apple maintained its market dominance thanks to the iPad 11 and the iPad Pro equipped with the M5 chip. Also facing the threat of rising memory prices, demand for tablets in 2026 will come under greater pressure. Market growth will become more selective, relying mainly on high-end model replacement cycles in developed markets and experiences driven by AI ecosystems such as Apple Intelligence or Gemini.

Servers and AI servers, benefiting from the massive investments by cloud service providers (CSPs) in AI infrastructure, saw the global server market reach a record high in the fourth quarter of 2025, with quarterly revenue exceeding 125 billion USD (over 50% year-on-year growth). Among these, GPU-equipped systems accounted for more than half of the overall market. TrendForce predicts that capital expenditures by North American CSPs will grow by 40% year on year, driving global AI server shipments in 2026 to surge by more than 28%. As AI shifts from “model training” to “inference services (Inference),” the enormous demand for inference computing is also driving the expansion and replacement of general-purpose servers. Global server (including AI servers) shipments in 2026 are expected to grow by 12.8% year on year. Meanwhile, the rise of ASIC servers is notable: AI servers equipped with custom chips (ASICs) are expected to increase their share to 27.8%, a new recent high, mainly driven by major companies such as Google expanding the deployment of in-house developed chips.

In summary, the global device market in 2025 presents a thriving outlook. AI is the absolute core running through all product lines in 2025—from AI server deployments in the cloud to AI PCs and GenAI smartphones in consumers’ hands. Manufacturers have successfully stimulated consumers’ willingness to upgrade devices through innovative technologies, driving a strong recovery in the overall hardware industry. However, the “early pull-in of shipments” behavior by major manufacturers at the end of 2025 in order to lock in costs also signals that 2026 will face severe challenges of component shortages (especially memory) and price increases.

Global notebook PC shipment volume and changes in growth rate

According to a TrendForce survey, in 2025, because notebook products enjoy tariff-free treatment when imported from Southeast Asia into the United States, and because the supply chain previously accelerated capacity deployment in the region in response to reciprocal tariff policies imposed by the U.S. Trump administration, capacity has gradually been put in place. Annual notebook shipments are expected to grow by about 2.2%, surpassing 180 million units.

Observing the shipment momentum in 2025 by quarter, the second quarter performed particularly strongly. On one hand, laptops manufactured in Southeast Asia and exported to the U.S. continued to enjoy zero tariffs, prompting brands to actively front-load shipments. On the other hand, the Chinese market benefited from subsidy policies driving a wave of device replacement, while Japan saw continued shipment momentum from the GIGA School 2.0 education program, leading to a quarterly shipment increase of 9.5%.

Starting from the second half of 2025, there has been pressure from a significant rise in memory prices. Beginning in early 2026, there are also challenges from a phased CPU supply shortage and price increases. In addition, costs of components such as PCBs, batteries, and power management ICs are rising simultaneously. This is expected to lead to a 14.8% quarter-on-quarter decline in global laptop shipments in Q1 2026.

TrendForce indicates that CPUs account for approximately 15–30% of a laptop's total BOM cost, depending on the device's specifications. At present, most low-end and mainstream-priced products still primarily use Intel CPUs. However, due to Intel's price increases for entry-level processors, and a potential supply gap that may not see slight improvement until after March, laptop brands are facing additional pressure on product configuration and shipment pacing.

From a memory-side analysis, it is estimated that in Q1 2026, contract prices for DRAM and SSDs used in laptops will increase quarter-over-quarter by 80% and over 70%, respectively. The magnitude of the upward movement is higher than expected. In addition, laptop brands have been actively shipping since Q4 2025, leading to a rapid decline in memory inventory weeks. However, starting in Q1 2026, due to a decline in brands' fulfillment rate from memory suppliers, flexibility in sourcing memory is constrained, which in turn affects production schedules and shipment pacing.

TrendForce points out that the cost of another component, PCBs, is also being driven up by factors such as increased design complexity and soaring copper prices. As the number of motherboard layers increases due to upgrades in mid- to high-end laptop specifications, the gradual rise in PCB costs will become a structural trend.

Upgrading laptop specifications has also driven up the cost of a single-unit battery. In addition, a rebound in lithium battery material prices has pushed battery quotes higher. At the same time, the rising power consumption of laptop CPUs and NPUs has also increased demand for power management IC configurations. Beyond that, the adoption of new standards such as Wi-Fi 7 and USB4 has further raised the cost of related chips and connectors. Although the price increases of these individual components are not as large as those of memory or CPUs, their combined impact still creates a tangible burden for laptop brands with relatively low profit margins.

Even if supply risks expand, brands remain optimistic about shipment forecasts for the first quarter of 2026. However, TrendForce considers that brands may not be able to secure all materials by the scheduled time point and therefore projects that global laptop shipments in the first quarter will decline 14.8% quarter-over-quarter, while the second quarter is expected to see a mild quarter-over-quarter increase due to improved Intel CPU availability.

As for the full-year performance in 2026, due to the combined effects of supply-side bottlenecks and unclear brand strategies, shipment volumes are expected to decline further from the previously estimated year-on-year decrease of 5.4% to a larger decline of 9.4%. TrendForce analysis indicates that, with memory prices remaining high and unstable CPU supply, the laptop market will face a certain degree of uncertainty in the short term. Going forward, how brands respond to potential changes in the supply environment of key components—such as adjustments to costs, inventory, and product strategies—as well as end-user demand's reaction to price increases, will be key factors determining the market trend in the second half of 2026.

Global display shipments and growth rate trends

Display demand YoY growth rate

© 2025 Omdia

According to Omdia's report, global demand for display panel area in 2026 is expected to grow by 6% year-on-year. Due to uncertainty in U.S. import tariff policies and a slowdown in economic growth, display panel shipment volume is expected to decline by 2%. However, driven by growing demand for large-sized display panels, overall area demand will still remain strong.

It is expected that the area demand in the display panel market in 2025 will grow by only 2%, a slower rate than in 2024. This is mainly due to supply chain changes triggered by U.S. import tariff policies, as well as weak consumer demand.

Omdia display panel research senior principal analyst Ricky Park stated: "Despite uncertainty surrounding tariff policies, as display technology advances and the trend toward larger sizes continues, demand for display panel area will maintain strong growth. In particular, as reductions in production costs gradually become apparent, we expect larger-sized display panels to enter the consumer market at more attractive prices."

Source: IDC Quarterly Personal Computing Device Tracker, January 12, 2026

According to the latest IDC report, although the personal computer (PC) market is expected to face turbulence over the next year, global PC shipments in the most recent holiday quarter still exceeded market expectations. In Q4 2025, global PC shipments grew nearly 10% year-over-year, reaching a total of 76.4 million units.

Microsoft's termination of support for the Windows 10 system is undoubtedly one of the key factors driving the rise in PC shipments. However, IDC also pointed out that, in response to potential changes in tariff policies and the global memory shortage issue, PC manufacturers had previously been proactively building up inventory in advance.

In the fourth quarter of 2025, Lenovo shipped 19.3 million units, ranking first, with a year-on-year growth of 14.4%; HP shipped 15.4 million units, with a year-on-year growth of 12.1%. Dell, with a growth rate of 18.2%, ranked first among the top three, shipping 11.7 million units; Apple's Mac shipments for the quarter were 7.1 million units, roughly flat compared to the same period last year; ASUS shipped 5.4 million units, with a year-on-year growth of 10.9%.

IDC indicates that the holiday season typically drives higher market demand, and the surge in shipments at the end of 2025 was further boosted by emerging memory shortage issues. Given that memory prices are expected to rise in 2026, brand manufacturers and channel buyers have been rushing to secure inventory in advance, further pushing up shipment levels for the quarter.

Due to a supply shortage driven by a surge in demand for artificial intelligence (AI) data centers, prices of random access memory (RAM) and NAND flash memory solid-state drives (SSDs) have risen significantly in recent months. PC manufacturers such as Lenovo and Dell have increased their efforts to stockpile memory, but these inventories may be depleted within a few months, potentially leading to higher PC prices and even prompting changes in product configurations.

IDC's Research Vice President stated: "In addition to the upward pressure on overall system prices announced by some vendors, in order to maintain existing memory inventories, we may also see an overall downgrade in memory configuration specifications for PC products. The market conditions over the coming year are destined to be extremely volatile."

IDC predicts that in 2026, the average selling price of PCs will increase. To offset the pressure brought by rising memory costs, PC manufacturers will shift their product focus toward mid-to-high-end models. All signs indicate that throughout 2026, the PC market will face an AI-driven market storm.

Global automobile sales in 2025 showed a slight growth of 1.8%. Although the overall auto market was affected by the impact of U.S. reciprocal tariffs, the momentum of early vehicle purchases still supported a slight increase in global sales.

In country-by-country sales rankings, China continues to hold the top position in global automobile sales; meanwhile, the Japanese market, after successfully emerging from the shadow of the vehicle model certification issue, has seen sales return to a growth trend.

In 2025, the market share of the four major automotive brand groups all showed a slight increase. The most notable change was the rise of Chinese brands, with BYD's sales officially surpassing Ford, and Geely's sales also successfully overtaking Honda.

The global electric vehicle (EV) market continues to grow strongly, with global EV sales significantly outperforming the overall automotive market. Although the fourth quarter may be affected by U.S. tariff policies, the combination of countries actively implementing net-zero carbon reduction goals and the gradual affordability of electric vehicle prices is expected to drive global EV sales to grow substantially by 12.6%. Overall, the global electric vehicle market share is projected to successfully exceed the 30% threshold in 2025.

Looking at the performance of the Taiwanese market and the competitive landscape of domestic automakers, Taiwan's total car sales in 2025 are expected to maintain a steady scale of 413,000 units. However, the market share of domestic cars is projected to slightly decline to 50.5%. In terms of domestic car sales rankings, Kuozui Motors and China Motor Corporation will continue to firmly hold the top two positions, while Sanyang Motor is expected to surpass Yulon Motor for the first time this year, reshaping the existing market order. Despite concerns over U.S. tariff impacts, the stable sales performance of domestically produced hybrid models, along with the government's extension of tax incentives such as exemption from commodity tax and vehicle license tax for electric vehicles, are expected to significantly boost Taiwan's EV market penetration to 37.2% in 2025.

Bank of America (BAC) latest in-depth research shows that analysts predict 2026 will become a key milestone in semiconductor history. The global annual semiconductor market is expected to grow by 30% and surpass the $1 trillion mark for the first time in history.

The report points out that this growth driven by AI infrastructure is not only redefining the scale of the technology industry, but is also giving rise to a group of industry leaders with absolute market monopoly power. The report states that the total addressable market for AI data center systems is expected to exceed 1.2 trillion US dollars by 2030, with a compound annual growth rate as high as 38%. Among them, the AI chip market alone contains business opportunities worth up to 900 billion US dollars.

In this wave of the semiconductor boom, Nvidia and Broadcom are regarded as the core forces driving the transformation. Nvidia is currently recognized as the leader in the AI computing field, and the report emphasizes that Nvidia's competitive advantage lies in the extremely high added value of its products. In other words, the price of a single GPU is about $30,000, which stands in stark contrast to the global semiconductor industry's average price of only about $2.4 per chip.

As for Broadcom, it plays an irreplaceable role in the field of AI connectivity technology and custom chips (ASICs). Broadcom specializes in further developing dedicated custom chips for hyperscale cloud service providers seeking to reduce their dependence on a single supply source. This strategic transformation has been highly recognized by the market, and industry analysis institutions such as Goldman Sachs have also affirmed Broadcom's expertise in custom design.

In addition to Nvidia and Broadcom, Bank of America has also selected four other key companies to form a "six giants" list leading a $1 trillion wave. These companies include Lam Research, KLA, Analog Devices (ADI), and Cadence Design Systems. The core logic behind Bank of America's stock selection lies in their dominant market positions and strong gross margins. According to the report, these companies typically hold a 70% to 75% market share in their respective specialized fields (such as equipment manufacturing, inspection, analog integrated circuits, and design tools). As AI deployment becomes increasingly capital-intensive, these service providers positioned at critical nodes of the industry chain will continue to benefit.

The report also emphasizes that the construction of AI infrastructure is not only a technological competition, but also a contest of financial strength. In particular, building a facility with a power capacity of 1 GW costs more than 60 billion USD, of which about half will be directly allocated to hardware equipment. Major tech companies continue to increase their investments, which is seen as a necessary measure to maintain competitive advantage and protect existing revenues. Although the market may face volatility and risks ahead, Bank of America believes that driven by factors such as high utilization rates, supply constraints, and the widespread adoption of AI on the enterprise side, this demand supports the resilient performance of leading semiconductor companies in 2026 and beyond.

Overall, the semiconductor industry is transitioning from traditional component supply to building an AI-centric ecosystem. Although the market may experience short-term volatility, the expectation that the global market will surpass 1 trillion USD indicates that semiconductors have become the most fundamental infrastructure of the modern economy.

And this AI infrastructure race is like building a modern metropolis on an unprecedented scale. If Nvidia is a power plant providing the engine of power, Broadcom is the sophisticated transportation network connecting the entire city, while Lam Research, KLA, ADI, and Cadence are like expert teams providing construction machinery, design blueprints, and precision inspection. These six companies each perform their own roles, jointly supporting this trillion-dollar digital city.

2. Industry Upstream, Midstream, and Downstream Linkages:

The connector industry chain is composed of upstream raw material supply, midstream manufacturing and processing, and downstream end-use applications. The cost of upstream raw materials accounts for approximately 60% of total manufacturing costs. In terms of material composition, metal materials represent the largest share of consumption, followed by plastic materials, with electroplating materials ranking next. Midstream manufacturers primarily focus on core processes such as product research and development, design, assembly, and manufacturing. Downstream applications span a wide range of industries, including automotive, computers, communications, industrial equipment, military and aerospace, transportation, and healthcare, demonstrating the broad market demand for connectors as critical foundational components.

3. Trends in Product Development:

The connector industry is a highly specialized and technology-intensive sector, and its development trends are closely aligned with the dynamics of today's high-tech application markets. As various electronic application technologies continue to evolve toward greater functional diversification, product miniaturization, and intelligent integration, connector manufacturers must also adapt to these technological directions by adjusting their industry models and implementing precise strategic planning.

- Technologies or products developed successfully:
  - Development of new products has improved yield rates and OEM production shipments.

- High-bandwidth cables such as Type-C and USB 4.1: Introducing a semi-automated mass production process.

With the rapid advancement of processor computing performance and display technologies, the demand for data transmission and video bandwidth between devices has increased significantly, making traditional cables increasingly unable to meet these evolving requirements. Driven by EU regulations mandating interface standardization, as well as the joint efforts of Apple, Intel, and the USB Implementers Forum, Type-C and high-speed transmission standards have become the market norm. Such high-specification cables must support high current capacity, high bandwidth, low signal loss, and low crosstalk, presenting substantial technical challenges for manufacturers. Leveraging its strong technological expertise and long-standing customer relationships, the Company has successfully developed products compliant with the USB 4.1 specification. Through design optimization and manufacturing automation, it has effectively enhanced production efficiency and product quality, and has now entered a stable mass-production stage.

- Transmission Cable Assemblies for Vehicle Control Wiring Harnesses and Edge Computing Applications.

Electric vehicles and autonomous driving technologies are shaping the future direction of the automotive industry. Their core lies in the efficient transmission of edge-computing data and system stability to ensure driving safety. As supply chain structures are reorganized, the rise of emerging automakers is creating significant market opportunities. To address the challenges of vibration and extreme climate conditions in automotive environments, our company has engaged in early-stage collaborative design with customers to develop highly reliable wiring harness solutions, which have successfully passed validation and entered mass production. Going forward, we will continue integrating intelligent functions such as multimedia, positioning, and safety monitoring, further strengthening our presence in automotive electronics.

C. Automation, Robotics, Industry 4.0 Production Automation Wiring Group

In response to the global trend toward industrial automation, wire harness products must possess outstanding physical characteristics such as abrasion resistance, heat resistance, oil resistance, and electromagnetic interference (EMI) shielding. To meet the diverse requirements of Industry 4.0 applications, Jin Hao has adopted a flexible, high-mix low-volume production model, enhancing product adaptability and ensuring a stable supply in complex operating environments.

D. Research and optimization of Type-C adapter (dongle) and active cable assembly components.

With the trend toward lighter, thinner end-user devices and simplified interfaces, Type-C adapters and dedicated cable assembly products have become key peripherals. Our company collaborates with leading international IC design manufacturers to develop a variety of adapter products for different brand clients. As technical specifications are updated, our company continues to carry out firmware optimization and hardware upgrades to meet the evolving demands of high-speed transmission, while introducing new products to maintain its market-leading position.

E. Electronic assembly and processing, edge computing, and key components for the Internet of Things (IoT)

With the widespread adoption of Internet of Things (IoT) technology, intelligent appliance monitoring is transforming consumer behavior. Jinhao adopts a dual-track approach of “external technology collaboration” and “internal independent R&D” to develop innovative products that support smart devices. At the same time, the company has set the establishment of its own brand and distribution channels as its strategic goal, aiming to enhance market competitiveness and profitability through brand value, thereby injecting sustained growth momentum into the consumer electronics sector.

(2) Process and product improvement

A. Strengthen the application capability of information tools, and continuously improve efficiency, security, and yield in real time.

The core of management lies in ensuring the timeliness and accuracy of information. With the impact of global environmental changes and mobility restrictions, the value of information transmission has risen to a strategic level. In this context, the Management Information System (MIS) acts as the company’s central nervous system, responsible for integrating and analyzing key data on production, sales, and inventory, effectively eliminating human bias or decision-making errors caused by information lag, thereby improving responsiveness and accuracy. Through continuous system optimization, the company has achieved real-time analysis of dimensions such as efficiency, yield rate, timeliness, losses, and costs, enabling management to quickly issue directives in response to internal and external changes. In addition, the information system also assists overseas sites in improving operational efficiency, ensuring customer delivery commitments, and demonstrating the company’s high standards in management and service.

B. Use ERP management thinking to optimize processes and improve the rationality of production, sales, and inventory.

Facing severe price reduction pressure in the electronics manufacturing industry, the efficient utilization of various resources is the key to achieving profit targets. Our company adopts advanced computerized data management and integrates industrial engineering methods such as TOC (Theory of Constraints) to deeply examine and optimize production bottlenecks. Through precise control of production line cycle time and motion smoothness, and by promoting the transformation toward automation and semi-automation in processes, we meet the strict JIT (Just-In-Time production) requirements of major international manufacturers. In addition, through in-depth analysis of production and sales data, we effectively improve finished goods inventory management and reduce material receiving errors, enhancing overall production efficiency and alleviating the operational pressure caused by fluctuations in customer demand.

- C. Progressively introduce automated and modularized manufacturing processes to enhance production resilience and competitiveness.

In response to labor shortages and external environmental challenges, the company has established a phased goal of transitioning from semi-automation to full automation, while continuously enhancing employees' technical proficiency to ensure smooth processes; full automation will become the core for maintaining future competitive advantages. To reduce the impact of human operations on quality, the company has introduced a modular production model, and through mold optimization combined with high-precision automated inspection equipment, has significantly improved product yield and production efficiency. This transformation marks an important milestone in the evolution of the company's manufacturing processes, and in the future the company will continue to invest in the research and development of automation equipment to comprehensively enhance manufacturing quality.

- D. Upgrade high-frequency measurement technology and production line investment to ensure excellent transmission quality.

With the evolution of display technologies and advanced transmission requirements, the demands on transmission cables for high bandwidth, low feedback, low crosstalk, and low impedance characteristics have become increasingly stringent. To meet customers' needs for high-quality connectivity solutions, our company has increased R&D investment and introduced advanced high-frequency testing equipment. This equipment can precisely test the high-frequency characteristics of various products such as Type-C, HDMI, USB, and optical hybrid cables (AOC), ensuring compliance with design specifications. Through early-stage testing and verification mechanisms, design optimization and process defect elimination can be carried out in a timely manner, improving product stability. After completing equipment calibration and validation, production capacity will be further expanded to support mass production, ensuring that the products maintain excellent market competitiveness.

(IV) Long-Term and Short-Term Business Development Plans

In response to geopolitical factors, industry development trends, and significant changes in domestic and international business environments, the Company adjusts its organizational structure through various long-term and short-term plans in order to enhance its overall competitiveness. The following is a summary description of the Company's long-term and short-term plans:

1. Short-Term Development

(1) Product Marketing:

- A. Accurate grasp of market trends: As the global electronics components industry recovers, and demand for AI, high-performance computing (HPC), and cloud servers continues to grow, the company will conduct in-depth analysis of core customers' market dynamics and sales trends, precisely align with market demand, thereby reducing inventory risks and improving resource utilization efficiency, and avoiding resource buildup caused by forecasting errors.
- B. Deepen customer relationship management: strengthen cooperation and maintenance with existing customers, participate in new projects through a co-development (Co-Development) model, solidify opportunities for new product introduction, and ensure a leading advantage in key markets.
- C. Expand the business footprint and customer base: actively recruit professional talent with new market development capabilities, promote a diversified customer portfolio strategy, and reduce the operational risks caused by fluctuations in a single market through the expansion of business scope.
- D. Grasping forward-looking technological business opportunities: closely monitor industry development trends, collaborate with leading industry customers to develop next-generation transmission products, and focus on deploying active optical fiber (AOC, HDMI), SFP, embedded optical modules (EOM), and semiconductor-related application fields.
- E. Implement profit realization and capacity optimization: strengthen a profit-oriented management mechanism, continuously optimize capacity allocation, reduce inventory turnover pressure, and maximize the overall operational efficiency of the company's resources.

(2) In terms of production strategy

- A. Global decentralized production footprint: In response to changes in the international trade landscape and customer demand, implement a distributed production strategy. In addition to continuously expanding the production capacity of the Thailand production base, we are also actively strengthening the supply chain layout in Southeast Asia to enhance operational resilience.
- B. Supply chain resilience and integration: Carefully select and cultivate high-quality suppliers, strengthen external resource integration and real-time monitoring capabilities, and ensure the stability and quality standards of material supply; also make good use of local processing resources to optimize the overall material turnover efficiency of the supply chain.
- C. Improve production logistics efficiency: Enhance capacity forecasting and control mechanisms, reduce work-in-process (WIP) inventory and transportation costs, and improve the coordinated logistics capabilities between logistics and production.
- D. Engineering technology and process optimization: Establish a dedicated engineering technology team to deeply participate in development discussions during the product design stage, improving prototyping efficiency and mass production yield; at the same time, continuously promote process optimization projects through the introduction of industrial engineering (IE) methods and automation equipment.

E. Information management and early warning: deepen the application of management information systems, optimize material management efficiency to reduce backlog, and establish an accurate inventory level alert mechanism to achieve the goal of real-time regulation and control.

F. Equipment performance and quality stability: Continuously upgrade production equipment and fixtures to improve process precision and the level of automation, ensuring a high degree of consistency and stability in product quality.

(3) Research and development

A. Leading technology transformation strategy: closely following the evolution of global connectivity technologies, increasing R&D investment in USB 4.1, e-DP, Type-C, and high-performance optical fiber modules; and expanding solar interconnection technologies to ensure that the technology portfolio stays aligned with market trends.

B. Cross-disciplinary R&D resource integration: Combine external R&D capabilities to collaboratively develop emerging fields such as medical biotechnology, green recycling, solar energy, automotive electronics, and 3D sensing applications, thereby expanding diversified technology application markets.

C. Green manufacturing processes and regulatory compliance: Continuously monitor changes in global environmental protection regulations, keep abreast of developments in eco-friendly materials and green manufacturing processes, and introduce environmentally friendly production technologies in a timely manner to meet the international market's requirements for sustainable production.

D. Emerging market demand assessment: regularly evaluate niche markets such as the energy industry, Industry 4.0, automotive electronics, and smart healthcare, and develop innovative products in line with business progress to expand the application scope of the company's products.

E. Biotechnology and precision machining applications: Expand applications in the biotechnology industry, introduce materials and processing technologies dedicated to medical and agricultural biotechnology, leverage advantages in precision manufacturing processes to enter high-barrier markets, and enhance the company's long-term competitiveness.

(4) Management

A. Digitalized management system integration: Strengthen and optimize the management information system, enhance data integration capabilities for production efficiency, quality control, and cost management, and ensure the timeliness, accuracy, and scientific basis of business decision-making.

B. Talent development and localization strategy: Actively promote talent recruitment and development programs, attract global management talent to strengthen organizational resilience; for overseas production sites, continue to implement localized operating models, optimize talent structure and reduce expatriate costs, while enhancing the cohesion and operational stability of local employees.

2. Long-Term Development

(1) Product Marketing:

A. Deeply developing high-end optical communications and cross-domain applications: focusing on the field of high-precision and ultra-high-speed transmission optical communication products, closely tracking the evolving trends in servers, the automotive industry, industrial applications, the energy sector, and the communications market. Through co-developing products that meet cloud computing requirements with key customers, and actively exploring the broad application potential of optical communication technology in consumer electronics, in-vehicle systems, and medical fields.

- B. Building a globalized strategic logistics system: In accordance with customer demand and localization trends, establish duty-free or bonded warehousing facilities in key strategic regions around the world, and even set up small-scale regional reprocessing sites, in order to shorten delivery lead times (Lead Time) and significantly enhance service response efficiency.
- C. Diversified market development and external resource integration: Actively participate in leading industry exhibitions and academic seminars, and by integrating external resources, develop growth opportunities in emerging niche markets such as AI, medical biotechnology, solar energy, 3D printing, and environmental recycling.
- D. Deepen the layout in the new energy and electric vehicle market: continue to extend the product line into the new energy and electric vehicle (EV) sector, develop more diverse application scenarios, and strengthen the brand's market position in the future transportation ecosystem.

(2) Production policy

- A. Improve the global technical support service network: Plan to establish strategic offices in major global markets to provide real-time technical consultation and business support, thereby enhancing customer loyalty and overall satisfaction.
- B. Expanding manufacturing capabilities and vertical integration: continuously increasing manufacturing capacity, introducing PCBA (SMT/DIP) processes, and combining precision mechanical component assembly technology to position for future market opportunities in integrated assembly and maintenance services.
- C. Promoting smart manufacturing and precision technology: enhancing the application level of automation technology, and continuously advancing fully automated production to reduce reliance on labor; at the same time, using high-precision machining technology to improve the competitiveness of high-end products in the international market.
- D. Implementing sustainable competitiveness and biotechnology deployment: Continue to monitor the technological evolution of environmental protection, recycling, and biotechnology application equipment, and carefully evaluate and introduce relevant production lines to strengthen the company's sustainable competitive advantage in the green economy.

(3) Research and Development Strategy

- A. Develop next-generation high-speed transmission technology: In response to future demand for cable products with high speed, low loss, and low crosstalk, plan to introduce high-precision drawing and stranding equipment as well as forward-looking process technologies to meet the technical specifications of ultra-high-bandwidth transmissions such as Thunderbolt and Type-C.
- B. Link external R&D capabilities and technological collaboration: Integrate external R&D resources and establish strategic partnerships with global technology partners to jointly develop next-generation wiring harness solutions, ensuring that the company maintains a leading position in technological evolution.

(4) Management

A.Strengthening market data analysis and strategic decision-making: improving the accuracy of market intelligence collection, enhancing the dimensions of data analysis, and establishing a collaborative cooperation mechanism with external project teams, thereby accurately evaluating and introducing potential business opportunities, ensuring long-term competitive advantage.

B.Implement digitalized management and operational efficiency: Through the comprehensive upgrade of the Management Information System (MIS), ensure that real-time operational information is accurately transmitted to decision-making levels. Promote full-process and form digitalization, implement paperless management, and significantly improve overall operational efficiency.

C.Maximize resource allocation and capital efficiency: optimize overall resource allocation and integrate outsourced supply chain resources to strengthen bargaining and negotiation power. At the same time, properly dispose of ineffective equipment within the plant, optimize capital utilization efficiency, and enhance overall production momentum.

II. Market, production, and sales

(I) Market analysis

1. Sales regions of the Company's main products:

Unit: NT$ thousand; %

| Sales area     |          | 2024         |        | 2025         |        |

| Domestic Sales |          | 115,061      | 9.99   | 95,948       | 12.71  |
| Total          |          | 1,152,170    | 100.00 | 754,644      | 100.00 |

2. Market share:

Due to the fact that there are no specific market statistics for electronic cables and connectors, only the total market value of the cable industry and the approximate share of the major competitors are analyzed, as follows:

| Industry                     | Major manufacturers and competitors in the same industry                |
|------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Power cords                  | Linetek Electronic, Longwell, Wonderful Wire,Sunf Pu Technology,        |
| FFC                          | HIGH-TEK, HUA LI, CviLux Corporation, MEC IMEX INC.                     |
| Electronic transmission line | HIGH-TEK, HUA LI, Hotron Precision Electronic Industrial, MEC IMEX INC. |

According to market research data, the global wiring harness processing market has a total output value of approximately 60 billion USD, while our company's market share is about 0.1% to 0.2%. Although the current market share is relatively low, this also means that our company has extremely broad development space and growth potential. With the rapid development of global industries such as electronics, electric vehicles, communication equipment, and industrial automation, the demand for high-quality, high-performance connecting cables will continue to rise, further bringing enormous business opportunities to our company.

3. Future Market Supply and Demand, and Growth Potential:

Our company's cable assembly products are primarily used in computers and their peripheral devices, communications equipment, consumer electronics, industrial control systems, and automotive electronics. Benefiting from continuous innovation in the above application areas and the expansion of market reach, demand for cable assembly products has consistently maintained a steady growth trend. The following provides a detailed analysis of future demand trends in the main application industries:

- (1) 3C high-frequency product market: The Type-C interface has now firmly established its dominant position in the market. As laptops continue to evolve toward thinner and lighter designs, the number of traditional ports has been reduced, further increasing the urgent demand for universal Type-C interfaces. In addition, changes in lifestyle in the post-pandemic era have made remote video conferencing and working from home increasingly normal, continuously driving momentum in the laptop and tablet markets. With its outstanding transmission speed, high-capacity data transfer capability, and broad cross-device compatibility, Type-C adoption will continue to rise. Its technological advantages in high-speed data exchange, high-quality video output, and powerful power transmission (Power Delivery) have also led to steadily increasing market acceptance and penetration.
- (2) Server, automotive electronics, and industrial control markets: With the global expansion of data centers and the widespread adoption of cloud computing technologies, server architectures have an increasingly urgent demand for high-speed, high-bandwidth interconnect cables. At the same time, the rapid rise of the electric vehicle (EV) industry has made in-vehicle connectivity a core strategic transformation direction for connector manufacturers. Due to the high technical barriers of automotive connectors, long product certification cycles, and extremely stringent requirements for service life and stability, they have become a key driving force behind the steady revenue growth of the connector industry in recent years. In addition, the in-depth development of industrial automation and smart manufacturing has also simultaneously boosted demand from industrial control equipment for precision interconnect cables. It is expected that the market size in this field will continue to expand as industries upgrade in the future.

4. Competitive Niche:

(1) In terms of research and development innovation

Our company's R&D team has over ten years of extensive industry experience, and the core members have an average tenure of more than five years within the company, demonstrating outstanding capability in mastering market trend dynamics and the evolution of technical specifications. In terms of development methodology, the company adopts the JDVM (Joint Development and Value Management) and JDSM (Joint Development and Supplier Management) models, working in deep collaboration with leading global clients to co-develop high-precision cable assemblies. Over the past ten years, it has cumulatively developed more than ten thousand types of products, covering key specifications such as network connection cables, HDMI 2.1 high-speed transmission cables, USB 2.0/3.0/4.0, and Type-C. Its R&D achievements have repeatedly received recognition in the industry. In addition, the company continues to extend its technological reach into optical communications, 3D sensing, and the energy industry. Through external strategic collaboration and technical proposals, it has built high technological barriers, effectively widening the gap with competitors.

(2) With respect to production and manufacturing

The company places great emphasis on innovation and iteration in production processes, continuously investing R&D resources to optimize manufacturing workflows, increase the proportion of automated production, and achieve the goal of operational cost optimization. We are equipped with a diverse and advanced range of production machinery, including extrusion machines, bunching machines, single-twisting machines, stranding machines, braiding machines, cutting machines, winding machines, reeling machines, wire stripping machines, forming machines, stripping and crimping machines, terminal crimping machines, automatic soldering machines, and semi-automatic assembly lines. All of the above equipment has been optimized and improved by our internal technical team to ensure a high level of product quality stability and maximization of production efficiency. In terms of capacity layout, the company has large-scale production bases in Kunshan, China and Thailand, and is actively expanding into the Vietnamese market. Leveraging a globalized production footprint to optimize supply chain efficiency, we further strengthen overall market competitiveness.

(3) With respect to business sales

The business model has successfully transitioned from pure OEM manufacturing to an ODM/JDM model with design and development capabilities, establishing deep strategic partnerships with customers. Since the products are developed through customized projects, they possess a high degree of irreplaceability, effectively increasing customers' switching costs and thereby strengthening long-term customer loyalty. Leveraging agile R&D capabilities, strong supply chain synergy, strict quality control, and flexible delivery mechanisms, supported by an efficient information management system, the company is able to maintain stable customer relationships and drive continuous business growth in a highly competitive market environment.

5. Prospects for development, favorable and unfavorable factors, and response strategies:

(1) Positive factors

A. Demand for automotive wiring harnesses and connectors continues to grow

With the evolution of the global automotive industry, the enhancement of vehicle safety standards, and the widespread application of advanced driver assistance systems (ADAS), demand for automotive wiring harnesses and connectors has grown steadily. In particular, the popularization of electric vehicles (EVs) has created an even more urgent need for high-power, high-transmission-stability connectivity components. In addition, innovations in in-vehicle electronics, infotainment, and intelligent driving technologies continue to drive the expansion of global market demand.

B. Obtain international major manufacturers' quality certification

Our company and its subsidiaries have successfully passed quality certifications from many internationally renowned OEM manufacturers, demonstrating that our products possess outstanding stability and quality. This not only strengthens the brand's reputation but also ensures that the company's products comply with stringent global regulatory standards, laying a solid foundation for expanding international market business and building deep customer trust.

- C. Actively position and develop forward-looking key industries
Our company has long been deeply engaged in forward-looking technology fields such as optical communications and semiconductors, which have become core driving forces in automotive applications, industrial control, energy, and big data computing. In addition, for high-potential markets such as 3D sensing, AI edge computing, Industry 4.0, renewable energy, and biotechnology, the company actively participates in industry chain development through forward-looking R&D deployment, ensuring a strategic position at the forefront of future technology trends.
- D. Global logistics network optimization to improve cost efficiency
To strengthen market competitiveness, our company is promoting global supply chain integration, achieving cost reduction and efficiency improvement through optimized production and sales allocation. In addition to having production bases in Zhangpu, Kunshan, China, and Thailand, we also maintain close collaboration with supply chain partners in southern China; in the future, we plan to further expand into Vietnam, leveraging the advantages of localized production to reduce labor costs and enhance supply chain flexibility.
- E. Vertical integration and coordination of internal and external resources
Our company focuses on the production of connecting cables and has established a comprehensive vertically integrated system covering processes such as plastic pelletizing, wire manufacturing, mold development, and plastic injection molding. Supported by a mature outsourcing management mechanism, we can flexibly allocate production capacity according to market demand, ensuring maximum production efficiency and rapid response to customer needs.
- F. Efficient information management platform to support decision-making Introduce advanced enterprise management information systems to ensure the real-time nature and accuracy of operational data, assisting management in implementing data-driven decision-making. Through big data analysis, anticipate potential risks and promptly adjust operational strategies to ensure the company's flexibility and resilience.
- G. Continuously improve equipment and process technology
The company is committed to improving the level of automation of production equipment. Through independent innovation and technological optimization, the R&D team develops production processes that meet the market demands for high performance and low cost, ensuring it maintains a leading position in industry competition.

(2) Negative factors

- A. Global economic variables affect end demand
With inflationary pressure and changes in the interest rate environment, demand momentum in the consumer electronics market has slowed, causing fluctuations in the revenue of related component industries. The company must flexibly adjust its business strategy to reduce the impact of economic cycles on its operations.
- B. The future of the PC/NB market remains uncertain.
In the post-pandemic era, demand for remote work has declined, and the PC/NB market has entered a plateau phase of growth. Brand customers are cautiously optimistic about future prospects, and demand for related components presents challenges.

C. US-China trade and geopolitical risks

The U.S.–China trade conflict has not only disrupted direct economic and trade exchanges between the two major economies, but has also had a profound impact on the stability of global supply chains and overall industrial layout. The resulting tariff barriers have forced companies to bear heavier cost burdens when importing raw materials and exporting finished products, thereby compressing their overall international competitiveness. In response to this supply chain uncertainty, many companies have begun to reassess their global production capacity allocation, gradually shifting manufacturing focus to Southeast Asia or other regions with cost advantages in order to avoid potential tariff risks. In addition, structural changes in the labor market should not be overlooked. Our company must accelerate the introduction of production line automation and robotics, reduce reliance on traditional labor, and further strengthen the resilience and robustness of the supply chain, ensuring that production operations can remain stable and efficient amid changing circumstances.

D. Mainland China’s rising labor costs and labor shortage challenges

In recent years, wage levels in mainland China have continued to rise, coupled with a tightening labor market supply, causing a significant increase in corporate operating costs, with an especially severe impact on labor-intensive manufacturing industries. As the Chinese government promotes a transformation policy of “domestic demand-driven growth,” its economic growth momentum is shifting from export expansion toward the domestic market, further widening the labor shortage in basic manufacturing sectors. Enterprises are facing the dual severe challenges of recruitment difficulties and rising labor costs. To resolve this predicament, our company must enhance efficiency through automation upgrades in production processes and a transition toward smart manufacturing, while strategically seeking production bases with more advantageous labor costs, such as Vietnam and Thailand, in order to ensure long-term industrial competitiveness and stable gross profit levels.

E. Exchange Rate Fluctuations

Exchange rate fluctuations have a significant impact on companies that are highly dependent on imports and exports, especially during periods of dramatic changes in the international political and economic situation, when volatility in the currency markets increases substantially, thereby exacerbating operational risks for businesses. Changes in exchange rates are directly reflected in revenue performance, raw material procurement costs, product pricing strategies, and market competitiveness. In the face of high uncertainty in the foreign exchange market, companies must establish a rigorous risk management mechanism, monitor exchange rate trends in real time, and accurately assess foreign exchange exposure. By flexibly adjusting procurement timing and pricing models, they can mitigate the impact of exchange rate fluctuations on operational results, ensuring that the company maintains financial stability and sustained growth in a changing international financial environment.

(3) Response Strategies

In order to maintain a leading position in a rapidly changing external environment, the company continues to strive for the dual enhancement of technological research and development effectiveness and management depth. At the market strategy level, we are actively strengthening our global presence, deepening customer relationship management, and promoting collaborative innovation in products and process technologies to increase added value. At the same time, the company is accelerating the comprehensive upgrade and digital transformation of its internal management information systems, optimizing operational data analysis capabilities, thereby improving operational efficiency and market responsiveness.

In response to uncertainties in the labor market and cost challenges, we continue to optimize our human resources planning and management system, and flexibly utilize diversified external human resources to precisely respond to fluctuations in production capacity demand during peak and off-peak seasons. In terms of industry layout, the company is intensifying its efforts to expand into high-potential emerging markets, covering key areas such as 3D sensing technology, artificial intelligence applications, green energy transition, and biotechnology. By accurately capturing the opportunities brought about by industrial transformation, we aim to turn external pressures into momentum for corporate upgrading, laying a solid and stable foundation for the company's future profit growth and long-term development.

(II) Key Applications and Manufacturing Process of Main Products

1. Products: Our products cover the connection cables required for computers, automobiles, and communication equipment, including 4G/5G connection cables, gaming console connection cables, smart home device connection cables, and automotive electronic connection cables.
2. Applications: These products are used for signal transmission in computers and peripheral devices, consumer electronics, communication products, home appliances, office equipment, and automotive electronics.
3. Production Process: We operate under OEM, ODM, and JDM models, and provide professional R&D and design services tailored to customer requirements to ensure product quality meets client standards and enhances market competitiveness.

(III) Supply Status of Main Raw Materials

| Major raw materials                | Supply area | Supplier                                                                |
|------------------------------------|-------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| CONNECTOR                          | China       | Guanghongda, Mei Wang, Hua Chang, Yu Ding, Chuang Xing Sheng, Cheng Tai |
| Copper wire                        | China       | Hua Chang,,Chuang Xing Sheng, Cheng Tai, Fen Fei,                       |
| FFC film                           | China       | Yu Hui, Lian Xin                                                        |
| Plastic powder, PVC, raw materials | China       | Xin Zhao Tai, Xu Zhi Xiang, Tai Su                                      |

The main raw materials of the Company are: cables, copper wires, FFC film, and PVC powder. As we have been working together for many years, the development of the relationship is good with a stable source of supply.

IV. Information on environmental protection expenses

In recent years and up to the date of printing this annual report, there have been no losses incurred due to environmental pollution, and no estimated amounts of current or potential future impacts or corresponding response measures are disclosed. If a reasonable estimate cannot be made, the fact that a reasonable estimate cannot be made shall be explained: none.

The company has not incurred any incidents of violations of environmental protection regulations, nor has it been subject to any penalties, losses, or compensation in its product manufacturing processes and operational activities. In accordance with relevant laws and regulations, the company has carefully reviewed the nature of its operations and has confirmed that it is not required to obtain permits for the installation of pollution control facilities or pollution discharge permits. In the most recent fiscal year and up to the date of publication of the annual report, there have been no records of any administrative sanctions imposed by competent authorities due to environmental pollution.

Although no pollution incidents have occurred, the company still proactively deploys environmentally friendly transformation with forward-looking thinking. In response to the global high demand for non-toxic and green products, a dedicated project team has been established, investing substantial R&D resources to develop environmentally compliant plastic materials for wires and non-halogen materials. The related R&D equipment, laboratory instruments, and material investments all constitute significant environmental expenditures. The company adheres to the principle that prevention is better than remediation, internalizing environmental responsibility as a core part of its operational strategy rather than passively responding to regulatory requirements.

Our company has implemented the ISO 14001 environmental management system, ISO 45001 occupational health and safety management system, ISO 9001 product quality management system, and IECQ QC 080000:2017 hazardous substances process management system certification at our Kunshan subsidiary production base. Through institutionalized management, internal audits, and continuous improvement mechanisms, we comprehensively enhance environmental and occupational safety management effectiveness and implement the following specific measures:

(I) Supplier Management:

Our company has always regarded suppliers as long-term and close partners. We firmly believe that only by establishing an equal, honest, and mutually trusting and beneficial foundation for cooperation can we strengthen the competitiveness of the entire industrial chain. Therefore, we actively integrate suppliers into the systems of Jinhao Company, help them understand Jinhao's culture, and are willing to proactively share resources and our own management experience to assist suppliers in improving quality and sustainable management capabilities, working together to build a cooperative system that combines vertical integration and horizontal development. Through full communication between customers and supplier partners, we expand both products and the range of services we can provide, achieving comprehensive development. We believe that for supplier partners, only by benefiting others first can we ultimately benefit ourselves.

To ensure that the supply chain complies with international environmental protection and social responsibility standards, our company has signed with suppliers:

1. Supplier Social Responsibility Acknowledgement.
2. Environmental Protection Agreement.

And clearly establish control standards for various hazardous substances, strictly comply with environmental regulations such as RoHS and REACH, and comprehensively prevent all types of hazardous substances from entering the production chain of Jin Hao Company.

(II) Hazardous Substance Control:

Since 2000, our company has worked in coordination with major global customers to implement controls on eight heavy metals and the prohibition of various hazardous substances. We have progressively expanded the scope of management year by year, fully adopting international environmental standards such as RoHS and REACH, and extending management requirements to the upstream supply chain. In addition to requiring suppliers to sign declarations of non-use of hazardous substances, the company also requires the implementation of a mechanism for investigating restricted substance content, and starts with self-management to ensure strict, multi-layered control at every stage. According to statistics from the Kunshan site, as of now, 115 suppliers have completed the signing of supplier corporate social responsibility confirmations and environmental protection agreements, accounting for 97.46% of all suppliers. In the future, we will continue to increase the coverage rate, strengthen the overall environmental management intensity of the supply chain, and fulfill our corporate responsibility for global environmental protection.

(III) Recycling and Reuse:

Facing the limitations and challenges of resource recycling in labor-intensive manufacturing processes, the company has not stood still; instead, it has proactively taken feasible steps and driven change from the inside out. The company first began with internal administrative and production management, including production records, work instructions, engineering drawings, and quality control reports, comprehensively adopting a second-draft paper usage system, allowing resource circulation to become part of daily management and gradually shaping a culture of conservation within the company.

(IV) Greenhouse Gas Emissions Reduction:

In terms of greenhouse gas reduction, our company is actively responding to the global net-zero carbon emission trend through concrete actions. By working with customers to promote localized production strategies, we have established strong regional manufacturing bases and continue to integrate vertical integration and horizontal development models, effectively shortening the transportation distance of raw materials and products, thereby significantly reducing transportation-related carbon footprints. At the same time, the company has introduced energy-saving LED lighting systems at major production sites, extensively replacing high-energy-consuming mercury lamps. This not only effectively reduces energy consumption but also eliminates the risk of mercury pollution. In addition, the company actively encourages employees to use electric scooters for commuting and provides free charging facilities, using tangible incentives to promote low-carbon transportation and comprehensively implement energy-saving and emission-reduction policies.

The total greenhouse gas emissions (Categories 1 to 4) for the Taipei, Kunshan, and Thailand regions in 2024 were 2,430.360 metric tons of CO<sub>2</sub>e. The top three emission sources were purchased electricity, purchased fuels and energy resources, and purchased products. Other emitted gases were mainly CH<sub>4</sub>, followed by HFCs. The company will continue to inventory emission sources and develop improvement plans, with the goal of gradually reducing carbon intensity year by year.

(V) Risks and Opportunities from Climate Change:

Our company closely monitors global climate change trends and international response directions, incorporating climate change as one of the major issues in corporate sustainable development and a key material risk item. We continuously conduct analysis and management, formulate climate change adaptation and mitigation strategies, and promote reductions in carbon emissions and the use of energy and resources, in compliance with government environmental regulations, customer requirements, and other relevant provisions.

Our company fully recognizes that climate risk is also business risk and is likewise an opportunity for transformation. We will continue to pursue proactive actions alongside institutionalized management to strengthen corporate resilience and sustainable competitiveness!

| Production is affected by typhoons, floods and droughts, resulting in financial losses and decreased revenue. | Enhance natural disaster resilience capabilities and strengthen climate resilient to reduce business interruptions and potential losses. | Establish a comprehensive water conditions monitoring and early warning mechanism to ensure that even in situations of water shortage or water supply interruption, production stability can be maintained through advance planning and scheduling arrangements. In addition, the company also regularly conducts emergency response drills and training to strengthen employees' disaster response capabilities, keep potential losses to a minimum, and ensure operational continuity. |
| Rising temperatures increase electricity use, thereby increasing costs and carbon emissions.                  | Promote low carbon/green production to save electricity use and costs.                                                                   | Continuously deepen the energy-saving management culture, implement "lights off when people leave," and stipulate that equipment must remain turned off during non-working hours. Through the parallel implementation of institutionalized management and employee self-discipline, effectively reduce unnecessary energy consumption and achieve the dual goals of energy conservation and carbon reduction as well as cost savings.                                                    |

- (II) Recent Fiscal Year and as of the Date of the Annual Report Publication, Losses Incurred Due to Labor Disputes (This includes results of labor inspections indicating violations of the Labor Standards Act. The details such as the date of disposition, disposition number, violated regulation articles, content of the violation, and the disposition itself should be clearly stated. Additionally, disclose the estimated amounts of potential future occurrences and the corresponding response measures). If it is not possible to reasonably estimate these amounts, an explanation of why they cannot be reasonably estimated should be provided.

In 2025 and 2026 as of the date of publication of the annual report, the Company did not suffer losses due to labor disputes.

VI. Information security management

- (I) Explain the information security risk management framework, information security policy, specific management measures, and resources invested in information security management.:

1、Information Security Risk Management Framework: The Company has established a dedicated information security organization. The head of the IT department concurrently serves as the Chief Information Security Officer, responsible for coordinating the formulation of information security policies, resource allocation, and the planning of overall protection strategies, as well as promoting, executing, and reviewing the effectiveness of the cybersecurity maintenance plan. Reporting to the Chief Information Security Officer are dedicated information security personnel, who are responsible for tasks such as cybersecurity intelligence integration, threat detection, vulnerability assessment, security health checks, and security drills. The main responsibilities of the Information Security Team are as follows :

(1) Information Security Dedicated Supervisor :

- Plan cybersecurity policies, resource allocation, and overall protection strategies
- Evaluate and review the implementation effectiveness of the information and communications security maintenance plan
- Formulate, revise, and promote the implementation of the information and communications security maintenance plan
- Establish an information and communications security incident reporting and response mechanism

(2) Information Security Officer :

- Integrate, analyze, and share cybersecurity intelligence
- Conduct cybersecurity drills and cooperate with drills required by competent authorities
- Perform vulnerability scanning, security assessments, threat detection, and cybersecurity protection
- Plan and conduct information security drills

In addition, the Information Technology Department also collaborates with various departments based on business needs and cybersecurity risk conditions, such as regularly issuing reminders about phishing email patterns, assisting colleagues in identifying threats, and implementing information security protection measures, in order to enhance all employees' cybersecurity awareness.

2、Information Security Policy: The company has established an information security policy and related management measures, and has published them internally for all employees to review, serving as the basis for information security management and daily operations compliance. The information security policy focuses on ensuring the confidentiality, integrity, and availability of information assets, and implements information security governance through institutionalized management mechanisms. The main content includes :

- Information asset protection principle: implement tiered classification management and access control, and use individual accounts and permission settings to ensure data is only accessible to authorized personnel.
- Account and permission management: Accounts for new hires, transfers, and departing personnel are handled according to formal procedures, and may only be activated or adjusted after approval by a supervisor.
- Password management requirements: Users must comply with password length, complexity, and periodic change requirements, and account sharing is prohibited.
- Personal data protection: handled in accordance with the Personal Data Protection Act, and completion of relevant document signing is required upon onboarding of new employees.
- Endpoint and device security management: All company computer devices adopt centralized management and protective measures to reduce endpoint risk.
- Information security education and awareness promotion: The IT department regularly issues security reminders to help colleagues improve their information security awareness and strengthen their ability to defend against social engineering attacks.

3 、 Information Security Management Plan: Our company, in accordance with its information security policy, has established multi-layered information security management measures covering endpoint protection, email security, vulnerability management, backup mechanisms, and disaster recovery, in order to reduce information security risks and ensure business continuity.

- Endpoint and device security: Implement a centralized endpoint management mechanism, including operating system updates, malware protection, vulnerability patching, and device usage control
- Email security protection: adopt a multi-layer email security mechanism (including email gateway and cloud threat filtering services) to block spam, malicious links, and phishing emails.
- Vulnerability management and cybersecurity testing: Implement vulnerability scanning and security testing mechanisms, regularly review the security of systems and devices, and perform necessary patches.
- Data backup and offsite disaster recovery: establish a multi-layered redundancy architecture, including host backups, storage device backups, and offsite backups, and regularly replace backup media and store it in a secure location .
- Disaster recovery and business continuity: Establish a data recovery process so that when system anomalies or data loss occur, restoration can be performed using backup data, thereby reducing the risk of business disruption. .
- Threat intelligence awareness: Subscribe to Chunghwa Telecom Cybersecurity Fleet services and regularly receive weekly threat intelligence reports throughout the year to stay informed of the latest attack trends and enable early prevention. .

4、Resources invested in information and communications security management：

(1) Human resources and training investment

Our company, in accordance with its operational scale, allocates appropriate information security management personnel. The head of the IT department concurrently serves as the dedicated information security supervisor, and IT department staff also concurrently handle information security-related operations. In 2025, IT personnel completed a total of 28 hours of professional information security training, with an average of more than 9 training hours per person. The course content covered topics such as information security awareness, cybersecurity incident prevention, and information and communications security control guidelines.

(2) Email security protection

According to this year's email security system statistics, more than 120,000 spam emails and over a hundred virus-infected emails were intercepted throughout the year, effectively reducing the risks of malicious emails, scam emails, and social engineering attacks.

(3) Endpoint security protection

Our company has implemented an endpoint protection system and, over the course of the year, has detected and blocked more than 2,800 instances of malicious programs and suspicious activity, including threats intercepted through modules such as AMSI protection, real-time protection, and web protection. Common types of threats include Trojan programs, password-stealing programs, and malicious scripts.

(4) Backup and Business Continuity Management

Our company performs daily NAS backups and replaces tapes weekly, which are then stored in a bank safe deposit box. All backup operations are completed normally to ensure that data can be quickly restored in the event of a disaster or system failure.

(5) Cybersecurity reminders and awareness promotion

The IT department regularly issues cybersecurity reminders throughout the year to help colleagues identify phishing emails and malicious links, enhancing overall cybersecurity awareness. °

I. Explanation of material changes (changes of 20% or more, and with a change amount reaching NT$10 million or more):

1. Current assets decreased: mainly due to a decline in operating revenue, which led to a relative decrease in cash and cash equivalents and accounts receivable.
2. Right-of-use assets decreased: mainly due to the periodic recognition of depreciation expense during the current year.
3. Intangible assets decreased: mainly due to the recognition of impairment losses on goodwill and the periodic recognition of amortization expense during the current year.
4. Current liabilities decreased: mainly due to the repayment of short-term borrowings during the current year.
5. Non-current liabilities increased: mainly due to an increase in long-term borrowings required for working capital during the current year.
6. Capital surplus increased: mainly due to the recognition of share premium from the private placement of cash capital increase during the current year.
7. Retained earnings decreased: mainly due to a decline in profitability during the current year.

II. Impact of Major Financial Changes in the Last Two Fiscal Years and Future Response Plans:

The above changes are all related to normal business operations and have not had any significant impact on the Company. The Company's overall performance has remained stable without any material abnormalities; therefore, no specific response plans are deemed necessary.

Note 1: The above annual financial information has been audited and certified by a certified public accountant.

Note 2: In the first quarter of 2025, due to the acquisition of a valuation report for the acquired subsidiary Zhengcheng Company, the original accounting treatment from the acquisition date was adjusted in accordance with the report, and the comparative information for 2024 was restated.

II. Financial performance

Major reasons for significant changes in operating income, net profit, and pre-tax net profit over the past two years and expected sales quantities and their basis, as well as potential impacts on the company's future financial operations and response plans:

| I. Explanation of material changes (changes of 20% or more, and with a change amount reaching NT$10 million or more): <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Operating revenue decreased: due to a decline in market demand, resulting in fewer orders.</li> <li>2. Operating costs decreased: due to the decrease in operating revenue, leading to a corresponding reduction in related expenses.</li> <li>3. Gross profit decreased: due to the decrease in operating revenue.</li> <li>4. Operating net loss decreased: due to the decrease in operating revenue while fixed operating expenses still had to be paid.</li> <li>5. Other comprehensive income, total comprehensive income for the year, and comprehensive income attributable to owners of the parent company decreased: due to the investment property in the previous year being measured at fair value for the first time, which recognized a revaluation gain on investment property and increased other comprehensive income in the previous year.</li> </ol> II. The expected sales volume and the basis thereof, the possible impact on the Company's future finance and business, and the response plan: The company and its subsidiaries have not issued any financial forecasts; therefore, expected sales quantities and their basis are not applicable. The company and its subsidiaries will continue to provide high-quality products and services to meet diverse customer needs, and are expected to maintain a certain level of growth momentum, ensuring a sound and stable financial structure. |           |           |                                  |                        |

Note 1: The profit and loss of the investee company has already been included in its investing company; to avoid confusion, it will not be separately presented here.

Note 2: In the second quarter of 2025, the Company disposed of SILICON TEST TECH. CORP. The remaining 4.82% equity interest, on the date of loss of control, was reclassified as “financial assets measured at fair value through other comprehensive income.”

Note 3: On the date on which the Company disposed of Cheng Yao Industrial Co., Ltd., it simultaneously lost control over Zhengyao.

- (II) Future investment plan: Within the scope permitted by laws and regulations, moderate adjustments will be made in response to the expansion of the business scale.

VI. Risk assessment for the most recent year and up to the date of report

- (I) Impacts of changes in interest rate, exchange rate and inflation on the Company's profit and loss and countermeasures:

1. Effect of changes in interest rates and exchange rates on the Company's profit or loss

2. Measures the Company plans to adopt in response to interest rate changes

The Company keeps in close contact with the banks while paying attention to changes in the market in order to obtain more favorable borrowing rates from banks.

3. Impact of exchange rate changes upon the Company's revenue

The Company mainly supplies connector components and parts for various types of information products and consumer electronics products. The proportion of export sales is approximately 90%, with the largest proportion received and paid in U.S. dollars. Given this, the U.S. dollar exchange rate has a significant impact on the Company's exchange rate. While the U.S. dollar is depreciating, the Company has exchange rate losses; when it is appreciating, the Company has exchange rate gains. Overall, the exchange rate gains and losses were within an acceptable range.

4. Measures the Company plans to adopt in response to exchange rate changes

In terms of exchange rates, the Company monitors changes in both domestic and international economic conditions and makes forecasts on exchange rate trends. Based on the daily foreign currency balances and projected income and expenditures, the Company plans and arranges hedging strategies through advance settlement or pre-selling of foreign currencies to mitigate exchange rate risks.

In terms of inflation, there has been no significant inflation observed in the Company's major sales markets in recent years, and therefore, no material impact on the Company's operations.

- (II) High-risk investments, highly leveraged investments, loans to other parties, endorsements, guarantees, and derivatives transactions; the main reasons for the profits/losses generated thereby; and response measures to be taken in the future:

1. The Company has been committed to operating within its industry since its establishment and there have been no high-risk or high-leveraged investment activities.
2. The Company provides loans to others and makes endorsements and guarantees. This is performed in accordance with the regulations set forth in the Company's "Procedures for Lending Funds to Others" and "Endorsement and Guarantee Management Regulations".

3. The Company does not engage in derivative products.

(III) Future research and development projects, and expenditures expected in connection therewith:

1. Future R&D plans:

(1) R&D of automotive wiring harness

As a critical component in the automotive system, automotive wiring harness will develop in a highly intelligent direction in the future. As automotive technology continues to improve, we will see more smart components and sensors being added to enable smarter control of automotive systems. Future automotive wiring harnesses will need to integrate more electronic components and sensors with different functions, such as sound systems, navigation equipment, in-car cameras and multimedia entertainment, to meet the changing needs of cars. In response to this trend and demand, we are conducting a series of R&D work on common automotive wiring harnesses, aiming to develop more advanced and smarter automotive wiring harness products to meet the development of future automotive technology.

- A. Battery cable: The power cable from the vehicle battery to the vehicle system. It is used to provide the power required by the entire system.
- B. Startup wire: Transmit the power from the battery to the starter of the engine to start the engine.
- C. Charging cable: used to transmit the power generated by the generator back to the vehicle battery for charging.
- D. Lighting cable: used to supply the power required for the vehicle lighting system, including headlamps, rear lamps, direction lamps and brake lamps.
- E. A/C cable: used to control the A/C system of the vehicle, including A/C compressors, fans, and temperature controllers.
- F. Fuel transmission line: used to transmit the fuel to the fuel system of the engine, including the fuel pump, fuel injector and fuel pressure regulator.
- G. Brake cable: used to control the braking system of the vehicle, including the brake pedal and the braking device.
- H. Transmission cable: used to control the transmission and transmission system of the vehicle, including the gearbox and transmission.
- I. System monitoring cable: used to monitor the state and failure of the vehicle system, including failure indicator and monitoring instrument.

(2) R&D of high-frequency cables

The transmission line in consumer electronic products plays a key role in transmitting signals or power to different components. In order to ensure the user experience and product stability, these transmission cables need to meet the relevant association specifications to ensure that their performance is stable and compliant with the standards. We are concentrating on the research and development of the latest Consumer Electronics Transmission Cable Association specifications in order to respond to changes in market demand and meet consumer demand for product performance and quality.

- A. USB4 is the latest USB specification that provides higher transmission rate and more functions, including functions such as transmission rate up to 80

Gbps, support for multiple device connections, and support for higher power input and output. The USB4 standard transmission cable supports the USB Type-C connector and is compatible with Thunderbolt 3.

- B. HDMI 2.1 is the latest version of the HDMI standard for connecting high-definition displays and other audio/video devices. It supports higher transmission rate, higher resolution, and higher color depth. The HDMI 2.1 standard transmission line supports the transmission rate of 48 Gbps, and has a durable enclosure and anti-interference design to ensure high-quality video and audio transmission.
- C. DisplayPort 40 is the latest DisplayPort standard that provides higher transmission rate and higher resolution, supporting up to 80Gbps transmission rate and 16K resolution. The transmission cable of the DisplayPort 2.0 standard also supports the USB Type-C connector and is highly reliable and durable.

- 2. Estimated R&D expenses: The R&D expenses planned for 2026 are estimated to account for approximately 8% of the total annual revenue for the year.

(IV) The impact upon the company's financial operations of important policy and legal developments at home and abroad, and the measures the company plans to adopt in response:

In the most recent year and up to the date of printing the annual report, due to the impact of geopolitical risks and tariffs, production costs and order volumes have experienced significant fluctuations. The company will continuously monitor the global situation, while also making self-improvements and proactively proposing response measures in a timely manner.

(V) Impact of technological changes (including information security risks) and industry changes on the company's financial operations and response measures:

Since 2010, the Company has introduced an Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) system which has been continuously optimized and upgraded to respond to the growth and adjustment of the business. In doing this, the ERP system is in line with the streamlining and optimization of the Company's integration of system resources. We introduced an e-commerce system in 2012 to optimize the manual process of sales, gradually increasing efficiency. The management of the company and its subsidiaries has implemented a Virtual Private Network (SSL-VPN) to effectively utilize information technology personnel, aiming to reduce costs and enhance corporate competitiveness.

(VI) Impact of changes in corporate image on crisis management and response measures:

The Company has always been committed to operating within its industry, with a goal of establishing a positive social image and fulfilling its social responsibility. There have been no incidents that could have damaged the Company's corporate image.

(VII) Expected benefits, potential risks, and response measures for the acquisition: None.

(VIII) Expected benefits, potential risks, and response measures for expanding the factory: None.

(IX) Risks and response measures associated with concentration in purchasing or sales:

The company's main sources of procurement and sales targets have different industry characteristics and stages of operation. The company also conducts further appropriate diversification analysis based on the future growth trends of its procurement and sales targets themselves as well as their industries, and diversifies future procurement sources and sales targets, in order to better maintain balanced and stable operating results, which is a goal of continuous effort.

(X) Impact, risks, and response measures regarding significant share transfers or replacements by directors, supervisors, or shareholders holding more than ten percent of the shares: None.

(XI) Impacts, risks, and responsive measures of a change in management rights:

The Company has a professional management team, and will not compromise the Company's advantages in management and operation due to changes in the management rights.

(XII) Litigation or non-litigation events, including finalized judgments or ongoing significant legal, non-litigation, or administrative disputes involving the company, its directors, supervisors, general manager, actual responsible persons, shareholders holding more than ten percent of the shares, and subsidiaries, which could significantly affect shareholders' equity or the price of securities, should disclose the contested facts, the amount in dispute, the start date of the litigation, the main parties involved in the dispute, and the status up to the date of the annual report publication: None.

(XIII) Other significant risks and response measures: None.

VII. Other material matters: None .

| Basis and rationality of the price setting                       | 1. Basis for Pricing: The pricing for the common shares issued through this private placement for domestic cash capital increase shall be no less than 80% of the higher of the following two reference prices calculated prior to the Company's pricing date: (1) The simple arithmetic average of the closing prices of the common shares for either 1, 3, or 5 business days preceding the pricing date, adjusted for any ex-rights (bonus shares) and ex-dividend effects, and adding back the effects of any reverse ex-rights resulting from capital reduction. (2) The simple arithmetic average of the closing prices of the common shares for 30 business days preceding the pricing date, adjusted for any ex-rights and ex-dividend effects, and adding back the effects of any reverse ex-rights resulting from capital reduction. 2. Reasonableness of Pricing: The pricing date for this private placement of common shares is October 15, 2025. The pricing is based on a reference price of NT$15.08, which is the simple arithmetic average closing price for the 30 business days prior to the pricing date. The actual private placement price is set at NT$12.07, representing 80.04% of the reference price. This complies with the resolution passed at the shareholders' meeting on June 30, 2025, requiring the price to be no less than 80% of the reference price. Therefore, the pricing is considered reasonable. |

| Reason for necessity of private placement                                 | In light of capital market conditions and fundraising efficiency, the Company proposes to conduct private placements instead of public offerings and seeks shareholders' authorization for the Board to proceed based on operational needs, thereby enhancing fundraising flexibility.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |                |                       |                                   |                                   |

| Difference between actual subscription price and reference price          | The private placement for this offering is based on October 15, 2025 as the pricing date. The reference price is calculated as follows: the simple arithmetic average of the closing prices of the Company's common shares on either 1, 3, or 5 trading days prior to the pricing date, adjusted for stock dividends and cash dividends and with stock price adjustments for capital reductions reversed; and the simple arithmetic average of the closing prices of the Company's common shares over the 30 trading days prior to the pricing date, similarly adjusted. The higher of these two calculated prices serves as the reference price. The private placement price is set at no less than 80% of the reference price, i.e., NT$12.07 (80.04%) per share, as the actual issue price for the new shares in this private placement. |                |                       |                                   |                                   |
| Impacts of private placement on shareholders' equity                      | The funds raised from this private placement will be used to support the Company's sustainable development and market expansion. By securing stable, long-term capital, the Company can reduce operating costs, improve its financial structure, enhance management efficiency, and strengthen its competitive advantage, thereby generating positive benefits for shareholders' equity.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                |                       |                                   |                                   |
| Fund utilization of private placement and project implementation progress | The proceeds from this private placement were received on October 29, 2025, and have been fully allocated to investment projects. The capital utilization plan was completed in the fourth quarter of 2025.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                |                       |                                   |                                   |
| Private placement benefits                                                | As the proceeds from this private placement were only allocated to investment projects in the fourth quarter of 2025, the period since deployment has been relatively short, and the related benefits have not yet become apparent.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |                |                       |                                   |                                   |
